PREFACE

THIS manual is a guide, designed primarily to help library assistants, library school students, college students, teachers, and users of libraries in general, in gaining a knowledge of reference books quickly. It does not pretend to be complete. The reference books and bibliographies included in this list are necessarily limited, first, to those of a strictly reference character, and, secondly, to the most useful works in the English language, with some exceptions in other languages. It is obviously impossible, without exceeding the limits of one volume, to include all of the important works of reference in foreign languages, which, though often of more value than the corresponding English books, still are of restricted use owing to the comparatively small number of readers of foreign languages who frequent our libraries.

Reference books which are limited to the use of the specialist have been in like manner usually omitted. Out-of-print books have occasionally been mentioned because they are to be found in the older libraries. It sometimes happens that the best reference book on a subject is out of print.

Almost all books of reference possess defects as well as merits ; it is difficult indeed to find one that is perfect. At the same time they are essential to a well-equipped library. The annotations of the titles herein contained are largely of a descriptive character, showing for what purposes the books mentioned are especially useful.

Besides cyclopedias and dictionaries which give direct aid, the reader will have to consult more elaborate treatises for further information. Bibliographies are guides to these. A knowledge of bibliography, therefore, forms an important part in the preparation of the student. The most useful reference department will include bibliographies of special subjects along with the cyclopedias of those subjects. It is to be regretted that books belonging to the class Bibliography are as a rule kept in the cataloger's room or the librarian's office, not in the reference department where they would be useful to the public. In a large library, such an important printed catalog as that of the Peabody Institute Library should by all means be kept where the public can have easy access to it, even if it is necessary to duplicate such a work.

This manual will also serve as a guide in the selection of reference books for a library. The prices given are the publishers' prices, and the lowest price is usually quoted. Books can often be obtained at a discount or picked up from time to time at auction or second-hand stores at a much reduced price. Reference books are expensive, and few libraries can afford to keep up with new editions or even with recent authorities. In many cases new editions are not worth the cost. They are frequently made from the same plates as the earlier editions, with slight alterations, not of sufficient importance to warrant the expense involved in their purchase. A suggestive list of one hundred reference books for a small library will be found at the end of the volume.

The selection of the books in this volume has been made from a study of the reference departments of the principal libraries of Philadelphia, Boston, New York, St. Louis, and Washington, and practically covers the course of study in reference books as pursued in the Drexel Institute Library School. Other library schools also give similar courses.

The compiler extends grateful acknowledgments for helpful suggestions to Mr. F. W. Faxon, Mr. Charles C. Soule, Mr. S. H. Berry, Mr. A. Growoll, Mr. Edward H. Virgin, Mr. David H. Hutcheson, Mr. Charles Martel, Mr. Steingrimur Stefansson, Dr. H. A. Millis, Dr. Roland P. Falkner, Miss A. R. Hasse, Miss Theodosia E. Macurdy, Mr. C. W. Andrews; to the reference librarians of the Free Library of Philadelphia, Astor Library, Library of Congress, and other libraries for their many courtesies, and to Mr. W. I. Fletcher, Mr. W. C. Lane, and Miss Nina E. Browne for their assistance in reading proof.

GUIDE TO REFERENCE BOOKS

"Reference books are the clearing-houses of knowledge. They are libraries in miniature, focusing into a single book information scattered through a thousand volumes. They are short-cuts to learning, pass-keys to the accumulated wisdom of the ages. The ordinary reader knows little of them, and realizes but slightly the great help they would be to him in his daily reading and daily living." W. G. Jordan in Literary era, 8: 52.

"A selection of the best works of reference should be the corner-stone of every library collection." A. R. Spofford in his Book for all readers.

"... For I have long known how much books of reference fail of all the good which they might accomplish, simply from ignorance of them, or inability to use them intelligently." Justin Winsor in Lib. jour. 3: 159.

"It is quite possible for a person of ordinary memory and ability, by careful study of reference books, by familiarity with the arrangement of his library, and by attention to the aids which his fellow librarians have put in print, to gain that respectable amount of information about a great many things essential to work at the information desk." George T. Little in Lib. jour. 20: C20.

"We all agree in lamenting that there are so many houses — even some of considerable social position — where you will not find a good atlas, a good dictionary, or a good cyclopædia of reference. What is still more lamentable, in a good many more houses where these books are, they are never referred to or opened. That is a very discreditable fact, because I defy anybody to take up a single copy of the Times newspaper and not come upon something in it, upon which, if their interest in the affairs of the day were active, intelligent, and alert as it ought to be, they would consult an atlas, dictionary, or cyclopædia of reference." John Morley in his Studies in literature, p. 205.

"It [a public library] should be rich in books of reference, in encyclopædias, where one may learn without cost of research what things are generally known. For it is far more useful to know these than to know those that are not generally known." J. R. Lowell in his Books and libraries.

INTRODUCTION

A REFERENCE book has been defined as "a book which is to be consulted for definite points of information rather than read through, and is arranged with explicit reference to ease in finding specific facts." (E. C. Richardson in Lib. jour. 18 : 254.) Books which come under this classification are usually separated from the rest of the books in a library and placed where they can be most readily consulted by the public, without the delay of customary formalities. They comprise general encyclopedias, cyclopedias of special subjects, dictionaries, gazetteers, atlases, etc. The term reference book in public libraries is also used to include many books that do not circulate outside the library either on account of their character or their value.¹

IN LIBRARIES

The term reference work is commonly used in libraries to include that branch of their administration which deals with the assistance given to readers in their use of the resources of the library. This is an important part of the educational work of public libraries. The "information desk" is now a well-established feature in the large libraries of America.² At this post the reference librarian presides. His duties are to assist readers in their search for information, and to some extent to guide the reading public by preparing lists of references on topics of the day or on subjects of general interest. He must be able to send inquirers to the necessary reference books or other authorities, and in order to do this he should have a thorough knowledge of the librarian's aids and guides, reference books, and bibliographies.

The reference librarian, especially in a public library, should keep a record of the questions most frequently asked, specifying places in which answers to the same can be found. It is well, if time does not allow for analytic work to be inserted in the card catalogue, to keep this record near the information desk, writing the questions on cards with references where found, and filing alphabetically. Much valuable time is consumed in looking up the same question over and over again. This is particularly noticeable in the case of questions for school work where a large number of children are assigned the same topic. Lists of all references on such subjects as Christmas, Arbor Day, Thanksgiving Day, Washington's Farewell address, lives of noted personages, — Washington, Lincoln, Lowell, Holmes, etc., — should be always at hand covering every available reference in the library on the subject.

In libraries where there is no reference librarian every attendant at the delivery desk must be ready to answer questions, and, when not able to do so, must refer them to the Librarian. Any one at all familiar with library management knows what a large number of questions — some trivial and some important — are brought to the library for solution every day.

The Librarian cannot always be accessible to the numerous visitors who come to the library. It is, therefore, of the highest importance that his assistants should, so far as possible, understand how to use reference books, which serve frequently as guides to more important authorities which may not be included under the limited title, reference book. The public certainly cannot expect the attendants to know the answers to the questions which they ask, but in the majority of cases they should be expected to know where to find them. This knowledge comes largely from daily experience, and becomes constantly more technical in character; it can, however, be materially assisted by a systematic study of reference books. Johnson said: "Knowledge is of two kinds. We know a subject ourselves, or we know where we can find information upon it." The latter is one of the necessary requirements of a librarian. A thorough understanding of the use and value of reference books assists one to turn readily to the correct book for the solution of some difficult point, and saves much valuable time. Every desk-attendant should be a reference librarian so far as in him lies the ability.

The true librarian finds no greater satisfaction in his daily work than that of solving a difficult problem for some earnest student by placing before him the best authority from some hidden corner of the library. The memory can be trained along these lines to a remarkable degree. The librarian who sincerely wishes to succeed in this, by a systematic study of the books of reference, and the use of the indexes and other keys, will be able to accomplish what will appear most wonderful to one not accustomed to the daily handling of books and constant observation of them.

A librarian, distinguished for his ability to assist readers and students, writes: "In the intervals of library work, I am accustomed to consider the looking up of subjects or authorities as one of my very best recreations. It is as interesting as a game of whist and much more profitable. . . . And this is one of the foremost attractions, let me add, of the librarian's calling; it is more full of intellectual variety, of wide-open avenues to knowledge, than any other vocation whatever." A. R. Spofford in his Book for all readers, p. 193.

In some of the large libraries meetings of the assistants are held at regular intervals. A study of aids and guides, with the result of practical experience in using them, can be made an instructive feature of such meetings. There are possibilities of improvement in the regular staff of the library in this way, while the results can be tested from time to time if desired by means of examinations, the questions asked at the delivery desk serving as a basis for such examination.

IN COLLEGES

In many colleges the study of bibliography has been introduced — usually as an elective course in the senior year — in which the use of reference books and the library catalog is included. This is realizing, to some extent, what Emerson so much desired when he wrote, earnestly advocating a professorship of books in every college. That the college is the proper field for such study there is little question. It is only to be regretted that such a chair does not exist in every college, and that the course is not a regular part of the curriculum. It is here that the student, who is pursuing a special line of work, finds that a knowledge of bibliography will aid him in obtaining access to the literature of his subject, and that in thoroughly understanding how to use reference books, he can find quickly information on subjects outside his specialty which otherwise he would either do without, or be obliged to consume much valuable time in finding.

IN SCHOOLS

A systematic study of the use of books can also be made an important feature in the training of teachers, and it might therefore be introduced to advantage into the course of study in high and normal schools. The knowledge of how to advise others what to read and how to find answers to the questions constantly coming up in the course of their reading is of the greatest value to the student who is soon to go out to teach young people. One of the difficult problems of the public libraries of the present day, especially in our large cities, is to make closer the union between the public library and the public schools. Many methods have been adopted to bring about better results in improving the character of the reading of the children in the schools, and much valuable discussion of these methods may be found in the volumes of the Library Journal. Nevertheless it still remains a formidable task for one librarian in a large city to influence several hundred public school teachers or to assist them to any perceptible degree in learning how to use the library and the books in it. Instruction of this character should begin before the cares and busy hours of teaching take up all the time, if not all the enthusiasm and desire on the part of the teacher.

A normal school is generally provided with a working collection of books. The instruction should therefore include a study of the catalog and classification of its own library, which must be made to conform as nearly as possible to the best library methods. In teaching the use of reference books in schools, it will often be found necessary to take the class to the public library, if the school library does not contain the most important of these books. On leaving the school, every student should be able to go to a library to look up any information either in catalog, on shelves, or in reference books.

The references (p. 6-8) will call attention to many articles in library periodicals, illustrating courses now given in normal schools.

HOW TO STUDY REFERENCE BOOKS

The student should first read the title-page and preface or introduction of each reference book, where the purpose of the book is usually stated. Then examine the book for special features, including indexes, cross-references, bibliographies, etc.

Several articles should be examined and compared with those on the same subjects in another reference book.

Additional points to be noted are: the authority for the article, its arrangement, the date, the treatment of the subject, whether technical or popular, whether concise or extended.

It is not sufficient that titles of reference books should be known to the student, but systematic study should be followed by constant reference to the books by means of set questions which must be looked up thoroughly. As the student progresses, he must not confine himself to the reference books, but consult the best books on any subject for fuller, and sometimes more authoritative, information. Many text-books are the best reference books on special subjects. These have not been included in this list, which is limited to the more narrow meaning of the term reference book. Libraries such as that of the British Museum, and even others not so large, include the leading text-books and authorities in the reference department. This should be done if the library can afford to possess duplicate copies.

Care should always be taken to keep in touch with what is being published, the latest editions and most recent authorities should be noted, and when a new work comes out, and is found to be useful for some specific purpose, it should be added to the students' list of reference books.

ENCYCLOPEDIAS

The word Encyclopædia is derived from two Greek words, meaning circular and instruction, and is applied to "a work in which the various topics included under several or all branches of knowledge are treated separately and usually in alphabetical order." (Century dictionary.) The shorter form, cyclopædia, is used with the same meaning, but it is often limited to a book treating of the various topics of one branch of knowledge.

In Encyclopedias the articles are usually arranged in alphabetical order as the most convenient for ready reference. Some, however, have topics arranged under the general class not under the specific name of the subject, as in the Britannica. In others a classified method of arrangement has been adopted; for example, the Iconographic encyclopædia, where each volume treats of a separate class.

The following outline is a condensed statement of the leading facts in the history of Encyclopedias. For fuller information consult the Century dictionary, Encyclopædia Britannica, La grande encyclopédie, Chambers's Encyclopædia, Larousse's Grand dictionnaire (pref. p. 5-76), and the chapter in Morley's Diderot and the Encyclopædists (1: 117-247).

Before the 16th century many attempts had been made to present in systematic form whatever was known in all branches of learning. Among the earliest of these may be mentioned the lost works of Terentius Varro in the first century B. C. and the Historia naturalis of Pliny (23-79 A. D.). The Opus majus of Roger Bacon in the 13th century was an effort of the same kind. During this century many volumes appeared bearing the title, Speculum (notably those of Vincent of Beauvais), which were the encyclopedias of their time.

It was, however, in 1541 that Ringelberg's Cyclopedia gave the name that has been commonly used for works of this character, and from that time the number of similar enterprises increased rapidly. In the 17th century, encyclopedias were printed in the vernacular, the Latin language having prevailed until that time. Bayle's Dictionnaire historique et critique, which appeared in 1696, was for a long time an authority, and was translated into English. It is still to be found either in the original or in translation among reference books, and has been in the past a source of information for many writers, although now it is seldom used.

ENGLISH

In England among the earlier encyclopedias of importance may be mentioned the Lexicon technicum, by Dr. John Harris (Lond. 1704), and the Cyclopedia; or, An universal dictionary of arts and sciences, by Ephraim Chambers (Lond. 1728, 2v. folio). The latter was much superior to other encyclopedias of that day, and is of interest as forming the basis of the famous French Encyclopédie.

The first edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica appeared in three quarto volumes (1768-71) and has since gone through nine editions.

Encyclopædia Britannica; a dictionary of arts, sciences, and general literature. Ed. 9. 24v. and index vol. il. pl. maps, Q. Edin.

Black, 1875-88. £36. (N. Y. Scribner, 1878-89. $145.)

This still remains the standard work of reference, although many of the articles are now out of date. The arrangement is under general rather than specific subject, the index volume referring to places in the general alphabet, where a specific subject may be found. The articles are lengthy treatises in most cases, written by authorities, and signed, with valuable bibliographies referring to sources appended. More useful for the specialist than the general reader. Biographies of living persons are omitted.

The index volume to the Philadelphia reprint (991 p.) is much fuller than the index to the English edition (499 p.). "By its aid, every name and every topic, treated anywhere in this vast repository of human knowledge, can be traced out and appropriated; while without, the E. B., with all its great merits, must remain very much in the nature of a sealed book to the reader who stands in need of immediate use and reference." A. R. Spofford in his Book for all readers.

An American reprint of the 9th edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica (Phil. Stoddart, 1875-90. 24v. and index, with supplement in 5v. $75) contains the same articles, with additional ones relating to American subjects at the end of each volume. It is less expensive than the English edition, though not so well printed. Other and cheaper reprints have been made.

Supplements to the Encyclopædia Britannica have been compiled with the object of furnishing information on American subjects not sufficiently well treated in the original work, and including subjects omitted from it. Among these are the Supplement published by Stoddart (N. Y. [Stoddart, 1883-89. 4v. $32], and one edited by D. O. Kellogg (Akron, O., Werner, 1900. 5v. $12.50).

Chambers's encyclopædia; a dictionary of universal knowledge. New ed. 10v. il. por. maps, Q. Lond. Chambers, 1901, [c 1892-1900]. $20. (Phil. Lippincott.) 032

First edition was published in 1860-68. It is a good concise encyclopedia, probably not sufficiently American, although the later editions have articles on American subjects written by specialists in the United States. Bibliographical references. Not much revision has been made since the 1890 edition.

Quilter, Harry. What's what; a guide for to-day to life as it is and things as they are. 1182 p. por. pl. maps, D. Lond. Sonnenschein, 1902. 6s. 032

A compact one-volume encyclopedia, in which the first part of the alphabet occupies about three quarters of the book. Of not much importance, but sometimes found useful.

Among the old English encyclopedias occasionally used may be mentioned:—

English cyclopædia, ed. by Charles Knight (1854-62, 22v. and Suppl. 1869-73, 4v.).

Penny cyclopædia (1833-43, 27v.).

Encyclopædia Metropolitana (1817-45, 30v.).

Rees's Cyclopædia; or, Universal dictionary of arts, sciences, and literature (1802-19, 45v.).

AMERICAN

The earliest American encyclopedias appear to have been simply reprints of those published in England. The Encyclopædia Americana (Phil. 1829-33, 13v.) was based on the German Konversations-lexikon.

The most important American encyclopedias in use at the present time are the following:—

Universal cyclopædia. New ed. prepared by a large corps of editors assisted by eminent European and American specialists, under the direction of C. K. Adams. 12v. il. pl. maps, Q. N. Y. Appleton, 1900, [c 1874-99]. $63. 031

Published originally in 1874 under the title, Johnson's Universal cyclopædia. This is the latest edition of the most comprehensive American encyclopedia, more nearly up to date than any other. Entry is made under specific subject and articles are signed. Scientific articles are good. Contains biographies of living persons. Colored plates and maps. Bibliographies appended to each article.

This new edition is not a thorough revision; the old plates have been used, slight modifications having been made where it would not affect the use of the old plates. An appendix (about 20 pages) to each volume gives new articles. Maps and illustrations have been altered. The work has been unnecessarily extended from 8 to 12 volumes without the addition of a corresponding revision.

American cyclopædia; a popular dictionary of general knowledge, ed. by George Ripley and C. A. Dana. 16v. il. maps, Q. N. Y. Appleton, 1883, [c '73-83]. $80. 031

— General and analytical index . . . by T. J. Conant and Blandina Conant. 854 p. Q. N. Y. Appleton, 1888. $5. 031

The first edition of the cyclopædia bore the title, New American cyclopædia (1861-63, 16v.).

The advance of knowledge since the publication of the last volume in 1883 makes the work now out of date for many subjects. It is supplemented by the Annual cyclopædia, but with the supplements is too large a work for ready reference.

Appleton's annual cyclopædia and register of important events in 1876-95. New ser. 20 v. por. pl. maps, Q. N. Y. Appleton, 1888-96. $5 per vol. 031

— Ser. 3, 1896-1901. v. 1-6, por. pl. maps, Q. N. Y. Appleton, 1897-1902.* $5 per vol. 031

— Analytical index to the supplements of the American cyclopædia. (See American cyclopædia. General and analytical index. 1888.) $5. 031

The first series (published yearly 1861-75 with general index) was called the American annual cyclopædia. The second series forms a supplement to the American cyclopædia. Each volume contains the history of the world for the year, biographical sketches of prominent men with portraits, a necrology, sketch of the literature of the year, and other valuable historical and statistical matter, the whole arranged alphabetically. The full alphabetical index to the second series will be found in volume 20, while the index in the volumes of the third series is cumulative.

International cyclopædia; a compendium of universal knowledge. New ed. 15 v. il. pl. maps, Q. N. Y. Dodd, 1894, [c '85-94]. $45. 031

Superseded by the New international encyclopædia, which is thoroughly revised. It is to be completed in 17 vols., of which v. 1 has been published ($5 per vol.).

International year book; a compendium of the world's progress in every department of human knowledge, 1898-1901. v. 1-4, por. pl. maps, O. N. Y. Dodd, [c 1899-1902].* $4 per vol. 031

Similar in scope to Appleton's Annual cyclopædia, but the entries are made under more specific topics. Designed to supplement encyclopædias.

People's cyclopædia of universal knowledge. . . . Ed. by W. H. De Puy and H. F. Reddall. New ed. rev. and enl. 6v. il. maps, Q. N. Y. Eaton, [c 1895-96]. $24. 031

Smaller than the others and of minor importance, but the appendix in vol. 6 contains useful miscellaneous information.

An encyclopædia which differs in its treatment of subjects and in its arrangement, not so useful for the general public, but of occasional assistance to the special student is:—

Iconographic encyclopædia of the arts and sciences; tr. fr. the German of the Bilder-atlas, iconographische encyclopædie; rev. and enl. by eminent American specialists. 7v. il. pl. maps, Q. Phil. Iconographic pub. co., 1886-90. $7 per vol. 031

No more published.

Contents: 1. Anthropology, ethnology and ethnography; 2. Archaeology, history of culture; 3. Painting and sculpture; 4. Architecture; 5. Constructive arts; 6. Applied mechanics; 7. Principles of geology.

This is an anglicized edition of the German Bilder-atlas (Brockhaus), an earlier edition of which was translated by J. G. Heck (1851, in 4v. text and 2v. plates). The new edition is revised and enlarged by American specialists. It includes "those branches of human knowledge whose acquisition can be facilitated and whose principles made clear by pictorial representation." The arrangement is not alphabetical but classed, related subjects being grouped together, and indexes at the end of each volume refer under the specific subject to the page where information and plates will be found.

Willsey, Joseph H. Harper's book of facts; a classified history of the world, embracing science, literature, and art, ed. by C. T. Lewis. 954 p. Q. N. Y. Harper, 1895. $8. 031

A useful work, very concise in its treatment of events, persons, and places. Convenient chronological outlines of the history of cities and countries will be found under their names.

Champlin, John Denison, jr. Young folks' cyclopædia of common things. Ed. 2 enl. 850 p. il. pl. O. N. Y. Holt, 1896. $2.50. J 031

An attempt "to bring cyclopædic knowledge within the range of a child's intellect." Articles very brief and simply told. Index.

— Young folks' cyclopædia of persons and places. Ed. 2. 936 p. il. O. N. Y. Holt, 1895, [c '80-91]. $2.50. J 031

* Continued annually.

Supplements the preceding by giving biographical and geographical information. These cyclopædias are most useful in the children's room.

Many encyclopædias published earlier than those here mentioned, while for every-day use now out of date, contain much information that is occasionally needed. Among these may be mentioned: Brande & Cox's Dictionary of science, literature, and art (1875, 3v.), and Zell's Popular encyclopædia (1875-76, 2v.).

FRENCH

In France, during the 18th century, the famous Encyclopédie was conspicuous above all others of the time. This was the work of Diderot & D'Alembert, aided by many of the most able writers of that period, and was based on a French translation of the Cyclopædia of Ephraim Chambers. The Encyclopédie was published in Paris and Neufchatel in 28 vols., 1751-72, and was followed by a supplement in 5 vols., Amsterdam, 1776-77, and an analytical index, Paris, 1780. It was of the greatest influence in spreading revolutionary thought in France. Several editions were published outside of France, and it served as a model for many other encyclopædias.

For further information about this most interesting work, see Morley's chapter on the Encyclopædia in his Diderot and the Encyclopædists, 1891, 1: 117-247, and D'Alembert's Discours préliminaire de l'encyclopédie, Paris, 1893.

The French encyclopædias of the present time are of importance to every library as the most convenient source for information regarding European subjects.

La grande encyclopédie; inventaire raisonné des sciences, des lettres et des arts, par une société de savantes et des gens de lettres. v. 1-30, il. pl. maps, sq. Q. Paris, Lamirault, 1885-1901. 30 fr. per vol. 034

Not yet completed.

Articles are prepared and signed by specialists and give a brief bibliography of the subject. Fuller than Larousse.

Larousse, Pierre Athanase. Grand dictionnaire universel du xix^e siècle. . . . 17v. Q. Paris, Larousse, 1866-90. $105. 034

v. 16-17 are supplements.

Definitions and derivations of words are given, thus combining a dictionary with an encyclopædia.

— Nouveau Larousse illustré; dictionnaire universel encyclopédique. v. 1-4, il. pl. maps, F. Paris, Larousse, 1898-1901. $6 per vol. 034
To be completed in 7 vols.

GERMAN

The German encyclopedias include some of the most voluminous undertakings of the kind. The Allgemeine encyclopädie der wissenschaften und künste, edited by the scholars Ersch and Gruber, is the most extended. This great work was begun in 1818, and at present more than 170 volumes have appeared at intervals in three sections. Each subject is treated exhaustively, and many valuable contributions by specialists make it an important reference work. Its usefulness, however, is limited in this country to a few scholars.

The "Konversations-lexicons," which have been so popular in Germany, are better known to our American libraries than any other German reference books. They have been used as models by later American encyclopedists in their compilations. The Konversations-lexicon of Brockhaus and that of Meyer hold an almost equally important place in reference departments.

Brockhaus, Friedrich Arnold. Brockhaus's conversations-lexicon; allgemeine deutsche real-encyklopädie. Ed. 14 enl. 17v. il. pl. maps, Q. Lpz. Brockhaus, 1892-95. 170m. 033

v. 17 is a supplementary volume.

v. 1-6 of the 15th edition have been published at 12m. per vol.

Begun in 1796 by Löbel, it was taken up by Brockhaus in 1808. The first edition bore the title Damens-lexicon.

"No encyclopædia has been more useful and successful, or more frequently copied, imitated, and translated." Encyclopædia Britannica, article Encyclopædias.

Meyer, Hermann Julius. Meyer's konversations-lexicon; eine encyklopädie des allgemeinen wissens. Ed. 5 enl. 21v. il. pl. maps, O. Lpz. Bibliog. instituts, 1893-1901. 10m. per vol. 033

v. 18 contains the index and some supplementary articles; v. 19-21 are annual supplements arranged alphabetically. The volumes contain many illustrations and colored plates.

"In completeness and compression the best of its kind." Chambers's Encyclopædia.

Some important encyclopedias in the other continental languages will be found in large libraries, and are necessary in looking up full information regarding foreign affairs. Among these may be mentioned:—

ITALIAN

Nuova enciclopedia italiana; ovvero, Dizionario generale di scienze, lettere, industrie, ecc. Ed. 6 enl. 25v. in 26, il. pl. F. Torino, Unione tipografico-editrice Torinese, 1875-88. 035

— Supplemento raccolta di monografie sui recenti progressi delle scienze, delle arti e delle industrie, di biografie, di notizie storiche, geografiche, statistiche, ecc. 5v. in 6, il. pl. F. Torino, Unione tipografico-editrice Torinese, 1889-99. 035

SPANISH

Diccionario enciclopédico hispano-americano de literatura, ciencias y artes. 23v. il. pl. maps, F. Barcelona, Montaner y Simon, 1887-98. 036

SWEDISH

Nordisk familjebok; konversationslexikon och real-encyklopedi. 20v. il. pl. maps, O. Stockholm, 1876-99. 033.9

v. 19-20 are supplements.

The largest encyclopedia is one published in China, a copy of which has been placed in the British museum, consisting of 5020 native volumes bound in 1000 volumes.

In using general encyclopedias, the student should bear in mind the following points:—

(a) Whether the information wanted would be affected by the date of the article.

(b) Whether the article wanted should be a brief statement or a more exhaustive treatise on the subject. Whether it should be technical or popular.

(c) Whether the encyclopedia in hand enters under the general or the specific subject. In the Britannica one would find the smaller subjects treated under the class which includes them; in Johnson and others they are usually to be found under their own headings.

(d) To use the indexes and cross-references if the subject is not treated under the word for which one looks.

(e) To observe the bibliographical references at the end of the articles and follow up a subject by consulting the best authorities on it.

DICTIONARIES

The origin of the word is from the Latin dictionarium, which means a word-book. It was probably first employed in this sense by Joannes de Garlanda (d. 1250 A. D.). For the uses of the word consult the Century dictionary, and for its history the Introduction to Worcester's Dictionary, Tucker's Our common speech, p. 95-150, Williams's Our dictionaries and other English language topics, p. 5-44, and Baynes's Shakespeare studies and Essay on English dictionaries, p. 358-409. An interesting history of English dictionaries is to be found in James A. H. Murray's Evolution of English lexicography, 1900, 51 p. A bibliography of dictionaries still useful, though not recent, is Trübner's Catalogue of dictionaries and grammars of the world (Lond. Trübner, 1882).

ENGLISH

The earliest English dictionary of importance was Nathan Bailey's An universal etymological English dictionary (1721). Previous to the publication of this work, there had been no attempt to prepare a dictionary of all the words in the English language. Many glossaries of difficult words had been compiled during the 17th century, but they were not what we now mean when we speak of dictionaries.

After Bailey's great work, the next important dictionary was that by the celebrated author and lexicographer, Dr. Samuel Johnson, which is now better known than any of the dictionaries that appeared in the 18th century. It was published in 1755 (2 vols. folio), and was used as a basis for other dictionaries by many compilers. The publication of Johnson's Dictionary "formed a greater era than that of any other work. No other dictionary has had so much influence in fixing the external form of the language and ascertaining and settling the meaning and proper use of words." Worcester.

Many dictionaries followed Johnson's, but there were none of much value until the appearance of Charles Richardson's New dictionary of the English language, which was published in 1838 (2 vols. 4°). In this work more attention was paid to the history of words, showing by numerous quotations their meanings and any changes in meaning they may have undergone. This dictionary is still ranked high among scholars.

We now come to the dictionaries of the present day, which for practical use have superseded the earlier ones. The most comprehensive is:—

Murray, James Augustus Henry. New English dictionary on historical principles. v. 1-5, F. Ox. Clarendon press, 1888-1900. 52s. 6d. per vol. 423

Founded mainly on the materials collected by the Philological society, since 1857. The interesting history of this undertaking is told in the preface.

Very full on the philological side, it includes English words now in general use, or those in use at any time during the past 700 years, giving their meaning, origin, and history, with a large number of quotations from English writers to illustrate the history and use of words.

On account of the slow progress made in publishing this great work, it will probably be many years before it is completed. Vol. 5 to K.

It is a dictionary for the scholar rather than for popular use.

Known also as the Oxford dictionary.

Other English dictionaries of importance are: Stormonth's Dictionary of the English language (N. Y. Scribner, 1899. $9); Ogilvie's Imperial dictionary (Lond. Blackie, 1882-83. 4v. £5), encyclopedic in character; Hunter's Encyclopædic dictionary (Lond. Cassell, 1879-88. 7v. Q. 21s. per vol.), which has been reprinted in America (Phil. Syndicate pub. co. 1895. 4v. $16).

AMERICAN

During the past fifty years, two dictionaries have been published in the United States which hold about equal rank as authorities. The unabridged editions of Worcester's and of Webster's dictionaries have gone through many revisions. Webster's dictionary was for many years considered the authority for derivation and definition of words, while Worcester's was quoted as authority for pronunciation. The International dictionary, the latest edition of Webster, combines all the advantages of both.

Webster, Noah. International dictionary of the English language. 2011 p. il. por. F. Sprgf. [Mass.], Merriam, 1891, [c'64-90]. $12.

The first edition of Webster appeared in 1828. A later edition than the one above (1900) contains in a supplement a list of about 25,000 new words (238 p.). The supplement will probably be overlooked by the majority of users. The 1902 edition contains in addition a Reference history of the world, with index.

"The last edition of Webster, the International, is, perhaps, the best of one volume dictionaries." Murray in his Evolution of English lexicography, 1900.

Worcester, Joseph Emerson. Dictionary of the English language. New ed. enl. 2126 p. il. por. pl. Q. Phil. Lippincott, 1891. $10.

423

Worcester's first dictionary was published in 1830. A new and much enlarged edition is in preparation. There is an introduction on the history of English lexicography and a catalogue of English dictionaries.

Both Worcester's and Webster's dictionaries contain useful appendixes which are similar in scope :—

Dictionary of noted fictitious persons, places, etc.

Pronouncing dictionary of biography.

Pronouncing dictionary of Christian names.

Pronouncing gazetteer of the world.

Pronouncing dictionary of Scripture proper names.

Pronouncing dictionary of Greek and Latin proper names.

Dictionary of foreign quotations, phrases, etc.

Tables of abbreviations used in writing and printing.

Tables of signs used in writing and printing.

Whitney, William Dwight. Century dictionary; an encyclopedic lexicon of the English language. 6 v. il. F. N. Y. Century co., [c'1889-1901]. $60.

423

"The plan includes three things: the construction of a general dictionary of the English language which shall be serviceable for every literary and practical use;—a more complete collection of the technical terms of various sciences, arts, trades, and professions than has yet been attempted;—and the addition to the definitions proper of such related encyclopedic matter, with pictorial illustrations, as shall constitute a convenient book of general reference." Preface.

Supplemented by the Century Cyclopaedia of names and Century atlas, which see.

The most comprehensive American dictionary.

The latest edition, 1901, includes all the revisions that have been made since the first edition in 1891, thus giving the most recent information.

Funk, Isaac K., and others. Standard dictionary of the English language. . . . 2v. il. pl. sq. Q. N. Y. Funk, 1893. $18 (one vol. ed. $15).

A new edition (1901) has 11 p. of addenda, containing 1100 new words.

It is encyclopedic in character, giving fuller explanations of things than is usual in a dictionary, and it contains some words not to be found in other dictionaries. Illustrations and plates are good. Apx. contains list of proper names of all kinds, with their pronunciations, and other miscellaneous information similar to the appendixes of Webster and Worcester.

A supplementary volume of maps has been published, but is not important.

—Students' edition of a Standard dictionary of the English language. . . . 915 p. il. O. N. Y. Funk, 1898. $2.50.

423

Abridged from the preceding. An excellent small dictionary.

ETYMOLOGY

For the etymology of the English language, the best authority, so far as it has been published, is Murray's New English dictionary. A smaller but very useful volume, and the best concise dictionary is :—

Skeat, Walter William. Etymological dictionary of the English language. Ed. 2. 844 p. sq. Q. Ox. Clarendon press, 1893. £2 4s.

"Each article begins with a word, the etymology of which is to be sought; then a brief definition merely as a mark to identify the word; next an exact statement of the actual or probable language whence the word is taken, with an account of the channel or channels through which it has reached us." Preface.

A few quotations are given.

SYNONYMS

Books of synonyms are in constant use to distinguish words of similar meaning, and to assist in obtaining a variety of expression. Of these the best are :—

Crabb, George. English synonymes explained in alphabetical order. New ed. enl. 856 p. O. N. Y. Harper, 1892. $1.25.

424

Quotations from the best writers illustrating the use of the words are given.

SPECIAL SUBJECTS

The general cyclopedias do not always contain answers to questions which come up in relation to a particular subject. If the subject is a technical one for which a special cyclopedia has been compiled, it will save time to consult such a work, particularly if it is recent. A cyclopedia of this kind will describe and explain more minutely all the details of a subject and in many cases will be illustrated. For example, a special cyclopedia of chemistry will bring together all that relates to chemistry that is of practical use at the time of publication and within the scope of the work as laid down by the compiler. Every technical term will be explained as it could not be in a general cyclopedia.

Many subjects are without special dictionaries and, therefore, longer or more recent treatises than those contained in the encyclopedias must be sought in magazine articles, transactions of societies, or in books on the subject not belonging to the reference collection.

PHILOSOPHY

Baldwin, James Mark. Dictionary of philosophy and psychology. v. 1, il. Q. N. Y. Macmillan, 1901. $15. 103

Its object is "to understand the meanings which our terms have, and to render them by clear definitions . . . and to interpret the movements of thought through which the meanings thus determined have arisen, with a view to discovering what is really vital in the development of thought and term in one."

The treatment is primarily that of a dictionary, not that of a cyclopedia. The bibliographical feature has been given especial attention. There are references to each article. Volume 3 will be a complete bibliography of the subject.

"This dictionary is not only the first adequate work of its kind in English, but may be said to be the first adequate philosophic dictionary in any language." Joseph Jastrow in Dial, 31: 276.

Fleming, William. Vocabulary of philosophy, psychological, ethical, metaphysical. Ed. 4 enl. by Henry Calderwood. 439 p. D. Lond. Griffin, 1887. 10s. 6d. 103

A concise work giving variations in usage of philosophical terms; references to the literature of the subject; quotations from philosophical writers.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

TEMPERANCE

Cyclopædia of temperance and prohibition. 671 p. O. N. Y. Funk, 1891. $3. 178

Gives facts and statistics in regard to the drink question, the temperance movement, and prohibition. Index.

RELIGION

M'Clintock, John, and Strong, James. Cyclopædia of biblical, theological, and ecclesiastical literature. 10 v. il. Q. N. Y. Harper, 1869-81. $50.

— Supplement. 2 v. il. Q. N. Y. Harper, 1885-87. $10. 203

A very comprehensive book of reference on the science of theology in its widest sense, though now somewhat out of date. The supplement brings down to a later date many of the articles in the Cyclopædia. References are given under subjects to the most important and accessible books ancient and modern.

Schaff, Philip. Religious encyclopædia; or, Dictionary of biblical, historical, doctrinal, and practical theology, with an Encyclopædia of living divines and Christian workers of all denominations. . . . Ed. 3 enl. 4 v. Q. N. Y. Funk, 1891, [c '82]. $20. 203

Based on the Real-encyclopädie für protestantische theologie und kirche, ed. by Herzog and others, it gives much additional information for English readers. Known as the Schaff-Herzog encyclopædia.

Smith, Sir William, and Cheetham, Samuel. Dictionary of Christian antiquities. . . . 2 v. il. O. Lond. Murray, 1876-80. £3 13s. 6d. (Bost. Little. $15.) 203

Includes organization of the church, the social life, worship and ceremonial, sacred places, art and symbolism, sacred days and seasons, graves and catacombs of the Christians.

Smith, Sir William, and Wace, Henry. Dictionary of Christian biography, literature, sects, and doctrines. . . . 4v. O. Lond. Murray, 1877-87. £6 16s. 6d. (Bost. Little. $24.)

From the time of the Apostles to the age of Charlemagne.

With the Dictionary of Christian antiquities forms a continuation to the Dictionary of the Bible, comprising together a cyclopædia of ecclesiastical history for the first eight centuries of the Christian era. The articles in the three are written and signed by prominent theological writers.

BIBLE DICTIONARIES

Cheyne, T. K., and Black, J. S. Encyclopædia biblica; a critical dictionary of the literary, political, and religious history, the archæology, geography, and natural history of the Bible. v. 1-3, il. O. N. Y. Macmillan, 1899-1902. $5 per vol.

220.3

To be completed in 4 vols.

The standpoint is that of the higher criticism; the articles are written by leading biblical scholars.

Hastings, James. Dictionary of the Bible, dealing with its language, literature, and contents, including biblical theology. 4v. il. maps. Q. N. Y. Scribner, 1898-1902. $24.

"The book, in short, will be used with advantage by all non-professional students of the Bible. Nor can the professional student afford to disregard it." Nation, 72: 38.

In comparing these two important dictionaries the Nation says: "The one is an international undertaking which will be accepted and quoted on the continent of Europe as well as in England and America; the other is adapted for the use of the English-speaking peoples. The one [Cheyne] appeals to scholars and specialists, the other [Hastings] more to the body of the Christian church." Nation, 70: 246.

Smith, Sir William, and Fuller, J. M. Dictionary of the Bible. . . . Ed. 2. 3v. il. O. Lond. Murray, 1893. £4 4s. (Bost. Little. $22.)

This edition has been revised and enlarged.

The Dictionary does not include the various systems of theology, but embraces antiquities, biography, geography, and natural history of the Old Testament, New Testament, and Apocrypha. Articles give references to the best ancient and modern authorities.

"A work of a very high order . . . unquestionably antiquated." Nation, 67: 485.

BIBLE COMMENTARIES

Lange, John Peter. Commentary on the Holy Scripture; critical, doctrinal, and homiletical; tr. and ed. by Philip Schaff. 25v. O. N. Y. Scribner, 1873-87. $75.

220.7

The author was assisted by a number of eminent biblical scholars. The American edition has been revised to meet the needs of the American student. It contains introductions to each book and to the Bible as a whole.

The international critical commentary, under the editorship of C: A. Briggs, S. R. Driver, and Alfred Plummer (N. Y. Scribner, 1895. $3 per vol.), is in course of publication. It represents the latest biblical criticism, while Lange stands for the old.

An edition of the Bible must be included in the reference collection. One of the best for general use is the Riverside parallel Bible (Houghton, $5), which gives both King James's and the revised version.

BIBLE CONCORDANCES

Cruden, Alexander. Complete concordance to the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testament. . . . 856 p. O. N. Y. Dodd, [pref. 1737]. $1.

220.2

A dictionary of all the words of the Bible arranged alphabetically, with references to the various places where they are to be found. Compares the several meanings of the same words.

Divided into 3 alphabets: 1. Common words; 2. Proper names; 3. Apocryphal books.

Strong, James. Exhaustive concordance of the Bible. . . . 1340 + 262 + 205 p. Q. N. Y. Hunt, 1894, [c'90]. $6.

The best concordance. It gives every word of the text of the common English version and a comparative concordance of the authorized and revised versions, with brief dictionaries of the Hebrew and Greek words of the original, with references to the English words. To find a passage, look under any one of the words, especially the most important or striking.

Young, Robert. Analytical concordance to the Bible. New ed. enl. 1108 p. Q. N. Y. Funk, 1890. $5.

Contains the words of the Bible in alphabetical order, with their Hebrew or Greek originals, and the literal meaning and pronunciation of each. Includes proper names of every person and place.

SECTS

Blunt, John Henry. Dictionary of sects, heresies, ecclesiastical parties, and schools of religious thought. 647 p. Q. Lond. Longmans, 1892. $7.

280

Sectarian cyclopædias give more detailed information from the standpoint of each church. Among these are: Arnold's Catholic dictionary (N. Y. Catholic pub. soc. 1889), Cathcart's Baptist encyclopædia (Phil. 1883), Nevin's Encyclopædia of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. (Phil. 1884), Simpson's Cyclopædia of Methodism (Phil. 1883), Jacobs & Haas's Lutheran cyclopedia (N. Y. 1899).

Religious year-books or almanacs, e.g. the Official year-book of the Church of England, Whittaker's churchman's almanac, the American church almanac (for the Church of England and P. E. church), etc., are frequently needed.

Lloyd's clerical directory for 1898 (Hamilton, O. News and tel. pub. co.) is a statistical book of reference for facts relating to the clergy, parishes, and missions of the P. E. church in the United States.

The Clergy list, with which is incorporated the Clerical guide and ecclesiastical directory, 1902, is a similar work for Great Britain and the colonies.

MISSIONS

Bliss, Edwin Munsell. Encyclopædia of missions. . . . 2v. maps, Q. N. Y. Funk, 1891. $12. 266

The scope of the work includes the description, history, biography, and statistics of mission work, arranged in alphabetical order, with maps and a bibliography.

Singer, Isadore, and others. The Jewish encyclopædia; a descriptive record of the history, religion, literature, and customs of the Jewish people. v. 1, il. pl. Q. N. Y. Funk, 1901. $7 per vol. 296

To be completed in 12 vols.

"On one side, it is a true encyclopædia, and speaks, always from a Jewish standpoint, de omni scibili; on another, it is a cyclopædia as the record of a single branch of knowledge—the civilization of a single race. . . . The chief value of this book . . . is to be found in its biographies, its descriptions of the present state of Jews throughout the world, and in its elucidations of Talmudic law. On all these points it gives first-hand information of a kind and to an extent not accessible elsewhere." Nation, 73 : 341-342.

Hughes, Thomas Patrick. Dictionary of Islam; being a cyclopædia of the doctrines, rites, ceremonies, and customs, together with the technical and theological terms of the Muhammadan religion. 750 p. il. O. Lond. Allen, 1885. 42s. 297

LAW

The statutes of the state in which the library is situated, the ordinances of the city, and the Revised statutes of the United States should be on the reference shelves of every public library, and in addition the session laws of the state, which are valuable also historically, and the laws passed at each session of Congress.

Bouvier, John. Bouvier's law dictionary. New ed. rev. . . . to date by Francis Rawle. 2v. O. Bost. Boston book co. 1897, [c'39-97]. $12.

An encyclopedic dictionary, containing concise treatises on all the different phases of the law. Adapted to the laws and constitution of the United States, with references to the civil and other systems of foreign law. References are made to valuable articles in legal periodicals, and to reports of cases, abridgments, digests, and other authorities.

"[Bouvier] was the father of the hand-books of American law, dictionaries, encyclopædias, and all, by which we are surrounded and sometimes overwhelmed. Amid them he holds his own, through the inherent excellence of his arrangement, system, and execution." Nation, 66: 389.

American and English encyclopædia of law; ed. by D. S. Garland and L. P. McGehee under the supervision of James Cockcroft. Ed. 2. v. 1-20, O. N. Y. Thompson, 1896-1902. $6.50 per vol.

To be completed in 32 vols.

Ed. 1 is complete in 29 vols. and an index digest.

A summary of each subject, with full notes referring to many cases, often summing up briefly the decision. Occasional bibliographical references. The articles are by various authorities.

Intended for the lawyer rather than for the general reader, this cyclopedia will be important chiefly to the large public libraries.

A rival cyclopedia, entitled Cyclopedia of law and procedure, is to be completed in about 30 v. (N. Y. 1901).

Blackstone, Sir William. Commentaries on the laws of England, with notes selected from the editions of Archbold, Christian, Coleridge, Chitty, Stewart, Kerr, and others, and, in addition, notes and references to all text-books, and decisions wherein the commentaries have been cited and all statutes modifying the text, by W. D. Lewis. 4v. por. O. Phil. Welsh, 1897. $10.

The above is the latest edition of Blackstone. For popular use, almost any edition will answer the purpose.

Kent, James. Commentaries on American law; ed. by O. W. Holmes, jr., and J. M. Gould. Ed. 14. 4v. O. Bost. Little, 1896. $14.

While not strictly belonging with dictionaries, these two commentaries are essential to a reference department of a general library.

Parsons, Theophilus. Laws of business for all the states and territories of the Union and the Dominion of Canada. . . . New rev. ed. 867 p. O. Hartford, Scranton co. 1901, [c'1878-1900]. $3.75.

Gives forms and directions for all transactions and abstracts of the laws of all the states and territories on various topics—such as Partnership, Agency, Interest, Shipping, Mortgages. A popular handbook.

New York (state)—Library. Bulletin, legislation no. 15: comparative summary and index of legislation in [1901]. O. Alb. Univ. of the state of N. Y., 1901.* 25 cts.

Aims to digest and organize the laws of each state for each year, giving a concise comparative view of current state legislation by subjects, with alphabetical index.

Jones's Index to legal periodical literature

* Continued annually.

(Boston book co. 1888-99. 2v.) is an important guide to articles on law, legislation, political science, economics, sociology, etc., contained in periodicals.

STATISTICS

Mulhall, Michael George. Dictionary of statistics. Ed. 4. 853 p. pl. Q. Lond. Routledge, 1899. $8.50. 310

Divided into two parts: the first brings the statistics to 1890, the second embraces the last decade of the century to Nov., 1898. There are thus two alphabets and a general index at end. Tables of statistics of all countries, and covering as many years as possible on all subjects, the arrangement alphabetical.

YEAR-BOOKS

Year-books or annuals which give statistical information regarding the various states of the world are usually published about February or March of each year, and should be obtained immediately upon publication. They form one of the most important sections of a reference department, since they afford a ready guide to recent statistics, saving much investigation into authorities more difficult of access. Not only the current number, but back numbers as well, will be found necessary in a large library.

Besides the Statesman's year-book which is issued in England, there should be an American annual to supply the necessary statistical facts about our own country which cannot be found so completely given in the English publication, e. g. election returns of the various states, etc.

Appleton's Annual cyclopedia and the International year-book, already described under Encyclopedias, are among the important year-books.

FOREIGN

Almanach de Gotha; annuaire généalogique, diplomatique et statistique, 1902. T. Gotha, 1902.* $2.70. 354

Genealogies of the royal families and princely houses of Europe; diplomatic information concerning rulers of all countries and of their diplomatic agents and consuls; statistics of various countries.

A German edition is also published. The first Almanach appeared in 1763.

ENGLISH

Statesman's year-book, for 1902. v. 39, D. Lond. Macmillan, 1902.* $3. 305

Edited by J. S. Keltie. Statistical and descriptive information regarding all the countries of the world, revised every year. It has a high reputation for accuracy, and is the most important of the year-books. Arrangement: British empire; Foreign countries, alphabetically. Refers at end of each country to statistical and other books of reference concerning it. Index.

Whitaker, Joseph. Almanack for 1901. D. Lond. Whitaker, 1902.* $1. 314.2

Contains an account of astronomical and other phenomena, information respecting the government, finances, population, commerce, and general statistics of the British empire throughout the world, with brief notice of other countries. Alphabetical index in front. Supplementary volume, entitled Whitaker's Titled persons, gives the history of the peerage.

Hazell's annual for 1902. v. 17, D. Lond. Hazell, 1902.* $1.50. 032

A brief record of men and topics of the day alphabetically arranged like an encyclopedia.

English annuals* of a more special nature which are of occasional use in a large library are: Colonial office list (Harrison, 10s. 6d.), Politician's handbook (Vacher, 6s.), Constitutional year-book (Blackwood, 2s.), Municipal year book of the United Kingdom (Lloyd, 2s. 6d.), Civil service year-book and official calendar (Sheppard, 2s.), Year-book of Australia (Paul, 10s. 6d.), India list, civil and military (Allen, 10s. 6d.), Foreign office list and consular handbook (Harrison, 6s.), English-woman's year-book (Macmillan, $1.50), Roxburgh's Handbook of Jamaica (Stanford, 7s. 6d.), Canadian year-book (Toronto. 25 cts.).

AMERICAN

Of American annuals, the most practically useful are the newspaper almanacs, of which the following are the best:—

Tribune almanac and register for 1902. D. N. Y. 1902.* 25 cts. pap. 317.3

Published yearly by the N. Y. Daily Tribune. Confined to facts about the U. S. Recent statistics, election returns, laws, and other political information. Index at end.

World almanac, 1902. D. N. Y. World, 1902.* 25 cts. pap. 317.3

Especially useful for the U. S., but also includes much foreign statistics omitted in the Tribune almanac. Index in front.

The Chicago Daily News almanac* (25 cts.) is also to be recommended.

A library should also have the almanac of some paper published in its own city, to give names of local and state officials and other information of the locality.

Statistician and economist, 1901-02. v. 21, il. D. San Fran. McCarty, 1901. $3.50. 317.3

Formerly published under the title Annual statistician and economist, now a biennial publication.

* Continued annually.

Gives recent statistics and tables of the U. S., with some information about other countries; also miscellaneous facts and tables.

U. S. — Bureau of statistics. Statistical abstract of the U. S., 1901. v. 24, O. Wash. Government printing office, 1902.* free. 317.3

Annual statistics of population, finance, commerce, agricultural and other products, immigration, education, etc., for the current year, and in many cases for a number of years past.

Manual of statistics, stock exchange hand-book, 1901. v. 23, O. N. Y. Nicoll, 1901.* $5. 332

Statistics of banks, railroads, corporation interests, and markets of this country.

CENSUS

U. S. — Census office — 11th census. Compendium. 3 v. F. Wash. Government printing office, 1892-97. free. 317.3

v. 1, Population; v. 2-3, Miscellaneous statistics.

U. S. — Census office — 11th census. Abstract. 300 p. O. Wash. Government printing office, 1896. free. 317.3

A more condensed statement (in one volume) of the facts of the 11th census. All the subjects that are treated of in the 11th census are comprehended in this Abstract.

A complete set of the compendiums of the various censuses forms an important addition to the statistical books.

The full census reports must be consulted for more detailed statistical information regarding this country.

The bulletins of the 12th census are now in course of publication and give the most recent statistics. Volume one (on population) of the 12th census has been issued (1901). It contains graphic charts and maps, showing features of population.

U. S. — Census office — 11th census. Statistical atlas of the United States, based upon results of the 11th census, by Henry Gannett. 69 p. pl. maps, sq. F. Wash. Government printing office, 1898. 317.3

Shows the population, manufactures, agriculture, religion, etc., of this country by means of colored charts. An earlier edition is based upon the 10th census (1880).

Gannett, Henry. Building of a nation. . . . 252 p. il. pl. maps, O. N. Y. Thomas, 1895. $2.50. 317.3

A popular account of the growth, present condition, and resources of the U. S., with diagrams, outline maps, and statistical tables of the population, resources, etc., both of the past and present.

* Continued annually.

COMMERCE

The dictionaries of commerce are considerably out of date.

M'Culloch, John Ramsay. Dictionary of commerce and commercial navigation. New ed. enl. by A. J. Wilson. 1558 + 261 p. maps, O. Lond. Longmans, 1882. $21. 380.3

An English work which gives information regarding all matters relating to commerce in concise articles, with maps, statistical information, and bibliographical references.

Beeton, Samuel Orchart. Dictionary of industries and commerce. . . . 338 p. pl. O. Lond. Ward, n. d. £1. 380.3

Articles are briefer than those in M'Culloch, and it is not so comprehensive a work. English. Includes accounts, banking, and other useful subjects.

Colange, Auguste Léon de. American dictionary of commerce, manufactures, commercial law, and finance. 2v. il. Q. Bost. Estes, 1880-81. $13.50. o. p. 380.3

Commercial year-book; a statistical and historical record, 1896-1901. v. 1-6, O. N. Y. Journal of commerce and commercial bulletin, 1896-1901.* $1 per vol. 380.5

Relates to trade, industries, agriculture, banking, currencies, securities, railroads, shipping, insurance, population, etc., of the nations of the world. Index. Statistics are given from 1840.

U. S. — Bureau of foreign commerce. Review of the world's commerce during the year 1900. 247 p. O. Wash. Government printing office, 1901.* free. 380

Statistical tables of U. S. imports and exports, and statistical reports of the commerce of foreign countries. Index of places.

BUSINESS

Gaskell, G. A. Compendium of forms, educational, social, legal, commercial, embracing a complete course in penmanship and book-keeping. Atchison, Davis, 1887. $4. 658

Hill, Thomas Edie. Hill's manual of social and business forms, a guide to correct writing. . . . New ed. rev. 581 p. il. sq. Q. Chic. Hill, 1895. Subscription, $3. 658

These two works are similar in scope, comprising miscellaneous information regarding correspondence, forms used in business, proof-reading, etiquette, etc. Alphabetical index.

RAILWAYS

Poor, Henry V. Manual of the railroads of the U. S. for 1901. v. 34, O. N. Y. Poor, 1902.* $10. 385

* Continued annually.

Gives the routes of railroads, their mileage, stocks, bonds, debts, expenses, organizations, officers, etc., street railway and traction companies.

Travelers' official railway guide for the U. S., Canada, and Mexico, 1902. O. N. Y. Nat'l railway pub. co. 1902.* $5 per year, 50 cts. per monthly copy. 385

Railway time-tables, maps, mileage, list of officials, and other information relating to railroads.

U. S. — Interstate commerce commission. Annual report on the statistics of railways in the United States for the year ending June 30, 1900. O. Wash. Government printing office, 1901.* free. 385

EDUCATION

Fletcher, Alfred Ewen. Sonnenschein's cyclopædia of education. Ed. 3 enl. 570 p. O. Lond. Sonnenschein, 1889. 7s. 6d. 370.3

Brief articles by specialists on the history, theory, and practice of education, with references to sources and a bibliography of education as an appendix.

Kiddle, Henry, and Schem, A. J. Cyclopædia of education. 868 p. O. N. Y. Steiger, 1877. o. p. 370.3

Especially good for American and English information. Not sufficiently recent to be of every-day use, but it is the only American cyclopedia of the subject.

The most comprehensive cyclopedia of education is a German work compiled by K. A. Schmid, entitled Encyclopädie der gesamten erziehungs- und unterrichtswesen (1876-87. 10 v.). The French cyclopedia Dictionnaire de pédagogie et d'instruction primaire by Ferdinand Buisson (Paris, Hachette, 1882. 4 v.) is also important.

The latest reports of the United States Bureau of education and those of the state and city superintendents of instruction must frequently be consulted for statistical and other information relating to education.

Minerva; jahrbuch der gelehrten welt, 1891-1902. v. 1-11, il. S. Strassb. Trübner, 1891-1902.* 8m. per vol. 378

CUSTOMS

Brand, John. Observations on the popular antiquities of Great Britain . . . rev. and enl. by Sir Henry Ellis. New ed. enl. 3v. pl. D. Lond. Bell, 1888-90. 15s. 394

Gives the origin of customs, ceremonies, and superstitions of Great Britain. A general index in vol. 3.

Chambers, Robert. Book of days; a miscellany of popular antiquities, in connection with the calendar. 2v. il. Q. Phil. Lippincott, 1891. $7. 080

Published originally 1862-64. Later editions show little revision.

Under each day of the year (beginning with Jan. 1 and ending Dec. 31) is given anecdote, biography, history, curiosities of literature, and miscellaneous information. A general index in vol. 2 must be used.

Useful in looking up information about Hallowe'en, Christmas, etc.

Walsh, William Shepard. Curiosities of popular customs and of rites, ceremonies, observances, and miscellaneous antiquities. 1018 p. il. D. Phil. Lippincott, 1898. $3.50. 394 Tells of the origin of holidays, rites, ceremonies, and observances, particularly those pertaining to religion, with accounts of numerous miscellaneous antiquities. A compilation from various sources. Lacks an index.

Hone's Every-day book (Lond. 1826. o. p.) is occasionally useful.

COSTUME

Planché, James Robinson. Cyclopædia of costume; or, Dictionary of dress. . . . 2v. il. pl. sq. Q. Lond. Chatto, 1876. $20. 391

Vol. 1 is a dictionary of costume, giving in alphabetical order concise definitions of terms used in describing dress, with copious illustrations; vol. 2 gives a history of costume in Europe.

Besides many general books on costume, such as Racinet's Le costume historique, illustrated biographies and histories of various countries and periods must be consulted.

SCIENCE

In no department (except statistics) is it more necessary to keep up with recent editions of reference books than in science. Many of the cyclopedias in this section become obsolete almost as soon as published. The reference library must therefore contain the latest editions and authorities. Comparatively few good scientific dictionaries exist. Many old cyclopedias are frequently found useful; among these are: Tomlinson's Cyclopædia of useful arts, mechanical and chemical, manufactures, mining, and engineering (Lond. Virtue, 1868. 3v.), and Ure's Dictionary of arts, manufactures, and mines (N. Y. 1857-62. 2v.).

TECHNICAL TERMS

Tolhausen, Alexandre. Dictionnaire technologique dans les langues française, anglaise et allemande. Ed. 4. 3v. S. Lpz. Tauchnitz, 1897-1901. (N. Y. Lemcke.) $11.50. 603

v. 1, French-German-English; v. 2, English-German-French; v. 3, German-English-French.

Gives equivalents in English, French, and German of terms employed in the sciences and arts.

Other similar dictionaries are: Röhrig and others' Technological dictionary (Wiesbaden, Bergmann, 1891. 3v. $14.50), Eger's Technological dictionary in the English and German languages (N. Y. Lemcke, 1886.

2v. $9.80), and Webber's Technisches wörterbuch in vier sprachen (Ber. Springer, 1897-99. 4v. $4.40), which includes also Italian.

MATHEMATICS AND ASTRONOMY

Davies, Charles, and Peck, W. G. Mathematical dictionary and cyclopedia of mathematical science. 592 p. il. O. N. Y. Barnes, [c 1855-83]. $5. 510.3

Definitions of terms and condensed articles on the various branches of mathematics.

American ephemeris and nautical almanac for . . . 1904. 591 p. il. maps, Q. Wash. Bur. of equipment, 1901.* $1. 528

Designed for the special use of navigators and astronomers.

ELECTRICITY

Houston, Edwin James. Dictionary of electrical words, terms, and phrases. Ed. 4 enl. 990 p. il. O. N. Y. Johnston, 1898, [c '89-98]. $7. 537

Concise definitions, with brief statement of the principles of the science, and some illustrations of apparatus. There are two appendixes, thus making three alphabets to be examined.

A smaller dictionary is Sloane's Standard electrical dictionary (Lond. Lockwood, 1900).

CHEMISTRY

Watts, Henry. Dictionary of chemistry; rev. and entirely rewritten by M. M. P. Muir and H. F. Morley . . . Ed. 2. 4v. O. Lond. Longmans, 1890-94. $50.50. 540.3

The original edition was called Dictionary of chemistry and the allied branches of other sciences (1865).

This edition deals mainly with the purely scientific side of chemistry.

Thorpe, Thomas Edward. Dictionary of applied chemistry. 3v. il. O. Lond. Longmans, 1890-93. $50. 660.3

"Essentially a dictionary of chemistry in its application to the arts and manufactures, hence it deals but sparingly with the purely scientific aspects of chemistry, unless these have some direct and immediate bearing upon the business of the technologist. The work may be considered as complementary to Watts's Dictionary, the general plan and arrangement are similar." Preface.

USEFUL ARTS

HORTICULTURE

Bailey, Liberty Hyde. Cyclopedia of American horticulture. 4v. il. Q. N. Y. Macmillan, 1901-02. $20.

630.3

"Purpose of this work is to make a complete record of the status of North American horticulture as it exists at the close of the 19th century. The work discusses the cultivation of fruits, flowers, and garden vegetables, describes all the species which are known to be in the horticultural trade, outlines the horticultural possibilities of the various states, territories, and provinces, presents biographies of those persons not living who have contributed most to the horticultural progress of North America, and indicates the leading monographic works relating to the various subjects." Preface.

A small volume will be issued annually to supplement the Cyclopedia.

"The most complete similar recent work in the English language is Nicholson's Illustrated dictionary of gardening, four vols. 1884-87. . . . Mottet's French edition of Nicholson, five vols. 1892-99, is the largest modern cyclopedia of horticulture, and the only one which exceeds in size the present American venture." Preface to v. 4.

MEDICINE

ALLUSIONS

Constant reference is made to books of this class for information regarding some word or proper name alluded to by a writer. Another class of users is that of the "prize question" seeker, whose first acquaintance with the use of books and libraries is often gained through the desire to answer correctly a set of questions for the prize offered.

Notes and queries; a medium of intercommunication for literary men, artists, antiquarians, genealogists. . . . Nov. 1849-1902. 105v. sq. O. Lond. 1850-1902. about £45. 805

ANTHOLOGIES AND QUOTATIONS

Anthologies and books of quotations are very numerous. Even a small library must have several in order to answer many questions as to authorship of passages. They are also of service in finding passages illustrating special subjects, in verifying a quotation as regards its accuracy and as regards its exact place in an author's work.

ANTHOLOGIES

POETICAL

Sargent, Epes. Harper's cyclopædia of British and American poetry. 958 p. Q. N. Y. Harper, 1882. $4.50. 808.8

Arranged chronologically, with index of first lines and an index of authors containing the names of their poems quoted in the volume. A short biographical sketch of each author is given.

Bryant, William Cullen. Family library of poetry and song. . . . 950 p. pl. facsim. Q. N. Y. Fords, [c 1870-86]. $5. 808.8

Arranged under Poems of infancy and youth; Poems of friendship; Poems of love, etc.

Index of first lines; index of titles; index of authors. Besides British and American poets, there are translations from ancient and modern languages.

Longfellow, Henry Wadsworth. Poets and poetry of Europe. . . . New ed. enl. 921 p. il. pl. Q. Bost. Houghton, 1888, [c '70]. $5. 808.8

A collection of translations from the poetry of ten different nations of Europe, arranged chronologically under each country, with biographical notices of the authors and an author index.

Other good collections are: Coates's Fireside encyclopedia of poetry (Phil. Porter. $5), Dana's Household book of poetry (N. Y. Appleton. $5), Bates's Cambridge book of poetry and song (N. Y. Crowell. $1.50).

There are also collections of the poetry of special countries, such as Stedman's American anthology and his Victorian anthology, Wilson's The poets and poetry of Scotland, Ward's English poets, etc., which may be classed among reference books.

In many public libraries it is necessary to keep a card index of titles of poems for use of the reference department. The Carnegie library of Pittsburg has a card index to 15,000 poems contained in 70 volumes of poetical selections.

RECITATIONS

Werner's directory of elocutionists, readers, lecturers, and other public instructors and entertainers, with lists of over 10,000 pieces for declamation and recitation, and 2500 dialogues. . . . Ed. by E. M. Wilbor. 389 p. D. N. Y. Werner, 1887. o. p. 808.8

The index to recitations comprises 89 pages, and indexes collections such as Garrett's 100 choice selections. They are mainly poetical selections, including, however, some prose recitations which are distinguished by the letter p.

While out of print and scarce, this volume is still to be found in some of the large reference libraries, and is the only reference book of the kind.

QUOTATIONS

Bartlett, John. Familiar quotations. Ed. 9. 1158 p. O. Bost. Little, 1900, [c 1875-91]. $3. 808.8

FICTION

The following guides to fiction are helpful in assisting the reader who wishes to pursue a course of reading in historical fiction, or who desires a novel illustrating some special subject, e. g. strikes, hunting, etc.

The Chronological index to historical fiction published by the Boston public library (ed. 2, 1875) included the titles of prose fiction, plays, and poems arranged chronologically under countries. This edition has been for some time out of print, but a third edition appeared in the Bulletin of the library from January, 1892, to January, 1896. Some explanatory notes are given.

San Francisco — Free public library.

Classified English prose fiction, including translations and juvenile works, with notes. 306 p. Q. San Fran. Crocker, 1891. $1.50. 016.823

Arranged alphabetically by subjects, including historical fiction under countries arranged by periods. Refers in the notes under subjects to bibliographies and other works.

Dixson, Mrs. Zella Allen. Comprehensive subject index to universal prose fiction. 421 p. D. N. Y. Dodd, 1897. $2. 016.823

Subjects are arranged alphabetically. Full of inaccuracies.

Griswold, William Maccrillis. Descriptive lists of novels. 617 p. O. Camb. [Mass.] Griswold, 1891. 016.823

Includes in separate parts: American, International, Romantic, and British novels, with an index to authors of works described. The compiler's object was "to direct the reader to good novels usually considered out of date and not read as often as the newer." Each part is arranged alphabetically under the titles, with a criticism of each novel quoted from some well-known literary review.

Midland railway institute, Derby, Eng. — Library. Descriptive handbook to the more noteworthy works of prose fiction in the library, comp. by E. A. Baker. 151 p. O. Derby, Midland railway inst. 1899. 50 cts. pap. 016.823

Bowen, Herbert Courthope. Descriptive catalogue of historical novels and tales. 29 p. O. Lond. Stanford, 1882. 1s. 6d. 016.823

A convenient and concise list arranged under countries by periods.

Library catalogs and finding-lists are of assistance. Among the most important are: —

The catalogue of the St. Louis mercantile library, English prose fiction (1892), contains a list of historical novels conveniently arranged for ready reference. The List of novels and tales of the Los Angeles public library (1894) gives many concise descriptive notes and a brief subject index. The Philadelphia mercantile library in its Bulletins, Oct. 1885-89, contains lists arranged by countries and states with chronological sub-arrangement. In its Class list, no. 1, English prose fiction (1897), the St. Louis public library gives a list of the best fiction and a list of historical novels.

In Sargent's Reading for the young and its Supplement (1890-96. 2v.) will be found a list of historical novels suitable for young folks, with brief descriptive notes.

For choice of the best fiction the following are useful :—

Buffalo — Public library. Author-title catalogue of English prose fiction, including translations. 190 p. O. Buffalo, Library, 1898. 25 cts. 016.823

Books on the open shelves, presumably the best fiction, are indicated.

The annotations of the section Fiction in the List of books for girls and women by Leypoldt & Iles are worth examining for clear, concise statement of each author's merits and demerits.

Cornu, Mme. Sophie, and Beer, William. List of French fiction. 28 p. Tt. Bost. Library bureau, 1898. (A. L. A. annotated lists.) 10 cts. 016.843

"Comprises 186 titles chosen from the works of 70 representative authors of France." Selected to serve as a guide to reading for the young.

DRAMA

An index to the large collections of dramas usually to be found in our libraries would be a valuable addition to the tools of a reference librarian. It is often necessary for him to look up the author of a play whose title only is known, or to ascertain in what volume of the numerous sets of dramas the play can be found. The most useful indexes at present available for the purpose are those to be found in certain library catalogs, notably those of the Milwaukee public library and the Library of the Peabody institute.

In the Catalogue of the Milwaukee public library a list of the plays to be found in collections in that Library is given under the authors and under the titles, and it indexes such sets as those of Lacy's and French's Acting edition of plays and other well-known dramas.

The Peabody institute library catalogue (vol. 2) under the heading Drama gives an alphabetical list of single plays, including those in foreign languages as well as in English. This is continued in the Supplement. The dramatic works of separate authors and many collections are indexed, among which are Dodsley's Old plays, Inchbald's British theatre, Cumberland's British theatre, and others.

The Catalogue of the dramas and dramatic poems contained in the Cincinnati public library (192 p. Q. 1879) is an extensive list, arranged under authors with title lists of English, French, German, Greek, and Latin dramas.

American dramatists' club. The American dramatists' club list, a standard of reference for the protection of dramatic property, no. 5, 1899. 46 p. O. N. Y. Amer. dramatists' club, 1899. 60 cts. 016.812

Issued annually.

A catalog of plays and operas by American and foreign authors produced in this country, giving names of authors and composers, and of owners, managers, or agents. Arranged alphabetically; 1st, by works of members of the American dramatists' club; 2d, by plays and operas by American and foreign authors not members of the club; 3d, by false titles.

Bates, Katharine Lee, and Godfrey, L. B. English drama, a working basis. 151 p. O. Wellesley college, 1896. $1. 016.822

Contains a list of collections of old plays; a general title index to collections; authors, plays, and references for English drama; books of general reference.

Under each author is given a list of the most useful editions, also short lists of illustrative works, notes, lexicons, and translations. The best editions are starred. There is also a list of helps to the study of ancient authors. Prices of books are given.

BIOGRAPHY

Dictionaries of biography are of three kinds: (1) general, (2) national, (3) of special classes. Consult first the national biographical dictionary in looking up a sketch of the life of a person. The articles are likely to be fuller, and more names are usually included in it. There are national biographical dictionaries for the more important countries of the world, of which only those in most general use are here mentioned.

General encyclopedias contain some excellent biographies. The Encyclopædia Britannica does not include names of living persons. The biographical articles in Johnson's are good and include contemporaries. Larousse is especially useful for Europeans. Webster's International dictionary contains in an appendix 10,000 names, giving merely full name, dates, and characterization.

In addition to biographical reference books, those cyclopedias of special subjects which include lives of persons famous in certain lines must be consulted. These have been described more fully under other headings; e. g. for painters, Champlin and Perkins's Cyclopedia of painters and painting; for musicians, Champlin and Apthorp's Cyclopedia of music and musicians, and Grove's Dictionary of music; for theologians, Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, and McClintock and Strong's Encyclopædia of biblical, theological, and ecclesiastical literature, etc.

The article on biographical dictionaries by C. H. Hull, in Johnson's universal cyclopædia, 1: 629, has some interesting information about their history, with a list of the best dictionaries.

GENERAL

Thomas, Joseph. Universal pronouncing dictionary of biography and mythology. Ed. 3 rev. and brought up to 1901. 2v. 2550 p. por. Q. Phil. Lippincott, 1901, [c 1870-1901]. $15.

920.01

Paged continuously.

Known as Lippincott's biographical dictionary.

The best general biographical reference book. It gives the pronunciation of names, sketches of lives of persons, and bibliographical references. A list of the leading English Christian names, with their equivalents in the various European languages, is given in an appendix. In the introduction the general principles of pronunciation of each of the more important European and Asiatic languages are stated.

The third edition includes some slight alterations of the original plates, which bring the information to the end of the nineteenth century. These have been made only when possible to do so without too much change to the articles. New names have in the same manner been inserted only where practicable. Full-page portraits have been introduced.

Smith, Benjamin Eli. Century cyclopedia of names. 1085 p. sq. F. N. Y. Century co. [c 1894]. $10.

Full in biography, including persons still living. Articles are concise.

920.01

Similar to Hoefer. "Of the larger number of the less important literary men, there is," in the Biographie générale, "very little more than their names, the dates of their birth and death, and the titles of their respective works, without any of that information respecting the contents or subjects of their writings which adds so much value to the articles in the Biographie universelle. . . . Nor are these lists so full, or compiled with such accuracy, as those in the Biographie universelle. In one point, however, and that of no small importance, the bibliographical information of the Biographie générale is superior to that of its rival. . . . In fact, the two books are complements of each other; each is necessary for the student." Quarterly review, 157: 225.

NATIONAL AMERICAN

Wilson, James Grant, and Fiske, John. Appleton's cyclopædia of American biography. 7v. il. por. Q. N. Y. Appleton, 1888-1900. $36.
920.07

"Includes names of native and adopted citizens of the U. S., including living persons, from the earliest settlement. Also eminent citizens of Canada, Mexico, and all other countries of North and South America. Also names of men of foreign birth who are closely identified with American history." Preface.

The arrangement of names of families is not alphabetical, but under the oldest member. This is an objectionable feature. There is a bibliography at the end of each article.

Volume 7 is a supplement containing names of persons who have become prominent since the publication of the original six volumes. It has also a list of pseudonyms, and a list of deaths of persons recorded as living in vols. 1-6.

National cyclopædia of American biography. v. 1-11, il. por. Q. N. Y. White, 1892-1901. $10 per vol.
920.073

A volume is published every year.

Contains biographical sketches of prominent Americans, and is devoted mainly to the lives of those who are of the present time. Names of individuals are to some extent grouped with reference to their work, but they do not necessarily follow in any special order. Each volume has an index to the names in the preceding volumes. Numerous portraits and plates are an important feature. Of special use for less known Americans.

Brown, John Howard. Lamb's biographical dictionary of the United States. v. 1-4, por. Q. Bost. Lamb, 1900-01, [c1897-1901]. $7 per vol.
920.073

To be completed in about 6 volumes.

Volume 1 was issued in 1897, with title Cyclopædia of American biographies. The later edition was revised.

Alphabetically arranged. Comparing with Appleton, the Nation says: "As to the matter, Lamb makes a nearer approach to democratic equality. Presidents and the like are handled less extensively, men and women of minor fame more liberally; very brief notices are few." Nation, 73: 12.

A useful collection of biographical sketches of women is Hale's Woman's record (N. Y. Harper, 1853), with portraits and an alphabetical index. It is now out of print.

DIRECTORIES

The city directory is in constant demand and should therefore be in the most convenient place in the library. In a large city it is important to include the business directory of the city which groups together all persons engaged in the same line of business. The Blue book is also much used. Large libraries will possess in addition directories of the large cities of this country. Volumes of past years are frequently consulted.

Various directories of special classes of persons published annually in England and America are also necessary to a large reference collection. Among these are:—

American: Medical and surgical register of the U. S. and Canada, the various religious directories, Textile manufacturers' directory and year book, Banker's register, Sharp & Alleman Co.'s lawyers' and bankers' directory, etc.

English: Whitaker's naval and military directory and Indian army list, Colonial office list, Foreign office list, Hart's army list, Navy list, Official army list, Civil service directory, etc.

GENEALOGY

Genealogies constitute a much-used class of books in our public libraries. In large cities historical society libraries will contain the best collections of genealogical books, and readers can be referred to them. The books mentioned here are among the best guides to the innumerable sources of information for family histories. Some historical society libraries have found it necessary to compile card indexes of local family history. As an example, the Pennsylvania historical society library has a large card index to family histories especially full for the middle states.

Illustrations of state seals, arms, flags, and colors, with a few colored plates of flags. A subject index and an index of names. The most comprehensive work on the U. S. flag.

Hulme, Frederick Edward. Flags of the world, their history, blazonry, and associations. . . . 152 p. pl. O. Lond. Warne, n. d. 6s. 929.9

26 colored plates.

Webster's Dictionary, the Standard, and the encyclopedias also contain colored plates of flags which are convenient for reference.

PORTRAITS

Samuel, Bunford. Index to American portraits. (In Pennsylvania magazine of history and biography, 25: 47-70, 228-247, 384-399.)

"This index is a selection only from one of a general nature in manuscript covering portraits of all nations. On account of space, even the American ones are selected, and comprise the period from 1732 to 1852." Magazines and books are indexed.

The American Library Association has in preparation an index to portraits.

BIO-BIBLIOGRAPHY

Oettinger, Edouard Marie. Bibliographie biographique universelle; dictionnaire des ouvrages relatifs à l'histoire de la vie publique et privée des personnages célèbres des tous les temps et de toutes les nations. 2v. O. Bruxelles, Stienon, 1854. 20fr. 016.92

Under the names of celebrated persons is given a list of important works relating to their lives.

Chevalier, Cyr Ulysse Joseph, abbé. Répertoire des sources historiques du moyen âge; bio-bibliographie. 2370 p. Q. Paris, Librairie de la Société bibliographique, 1877-86. 016.92
— Supplément. 2374-2846 p. Q. Paris, Librairie de la Société bibliographique, 1888. 016.92

Bibliographies of individuals are too numerous to be given here. Among examples may be mentioned the sections of the British museum catalogue relating to individuals, e. g. Shakespeare, Dante, etc. The Dante catalogue of the Cornell university library is an elaborate bibliography published in two quarto volumes.

The bibliographies appended to the volumes of the Great writers series are excellent for the authors included.

GEOGRAPHY

DICTIONARIES

Lippincott's gazetteer of the world; a complete pronouncing gazetteer or geographical dictionary of the world; originally edited by Joseph Thomas. New ed. rev. 2636 p. Q. Phil. Lippincott, 1901. $8. 910.3

The most comprehensive American work of its kind, alphabetically arranged, giving description and information of places, with pronunciation and various spellings of names. Revision is only in the appendix.

Chisholm, George G. "The Times" gazetteer of the world. New ed. 1774 p. Q. Lond. The Times office, 1899. 17s. 6d. 910.3

An English gazetteer, more full in English than in American names.

Chambers's concise gazetteer of the world, topographical, statistical, historical. 768 p. D. Lond. Chambers, 1902 (Phil. Lippincott). $2. 910.3

A concise English gazetteer.

U. S. — Board on geographic names. Second report, 1890-99. Ed. 2. 150 p. O. Wash. Government printing office, 1901. free. 910

This list includes all decisions in regard to geographic nomenclature and orthography as rendered by the Board, from its creation down to April 14, 1900, inclusive.

Blackie, C. Geographical etymology; a dictionary of place-names. Ed. 3 enl. 243 p. D. Lond. Murray, 1887. 75 cts. 910

Gives derivation and meaning of geographic names.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Mill, Hugh Robert. Hints to teachers and students on the choice of geographical books for reference and reading, with classified lists. 142 p. D. Lond. Longmans, 1897. $1.25. 016.91

A selected list, classified, with introductions on the practical use of the books mentioned. More full on the British Empire.

ATLASES

The best atlases are German. American maps are not so well made as foreign maps. For maps of the United States, however, we must consult an American atlas, while for those of foreign countries the foreign atlases are much better. Even a small library should possess a German or English atlas, and it is possible to have one, because a good foreign atlas can be bought at a low price.

AMERICAN

Smith, Benjamin Eli. Century atlas of the world. 402 p. 118 maps, F. N. Y. Century co. [c 1897-98]. $12.50. 912

A companion volume to the Century dictionary and the Century cyclopedia of names. One of the latest atlases, including recent changes in the Philippine and Hawaiian islands. Besides the usual information, the maps give steamship routes and cable lines, discoverers' and explorers' routes are traced, battlefields are marked with dates, and some historical maps are given. A very full alphabetical index makes the atlas easier to consult than the Rand & McNally atlas.

Rand, McNally & co. Indexed atlas of the world, containing large scale maps of every country and civil division upon the face of the globe . . . with historical, descriptive, and statistical matter relative to each. 2v. F⁶. Chic. Rand, McNally & co. [c 1892-98]. $18.50. 912

v. 1, United States; v. 2, foreign countries.

Index accompanies each map, giving population of every city, town, and village. Maps of large cities are frequently given. Colored diagrams show area, population, wealth, debt, productions, statistics of manufacture, commerce, and transportation. The maps are on a much larger scale than those of the Century atlas, but are not so well made.

—Rand-McNally new standard atlas of the world, containing large scale maps of every country and civil division upon the face of the globe. . . . 373 p. F⁶. Chic. Rand, McNally & co. [c 1899]. $8. 912

Cheaper edition of preceding in one volume, omitting descriptive text.

Rand, McNally & co.'s enlarged business atlas and shippers' guide. Ed. 30. F. Chic. Rand, McNally & co. 1900. $7.50. 912

Issued annually.

Contains large scale maps of the U. S., Canada, Mexico, Central America, West Indies, and Cuba, showing in detail the railroad systems, with an index giving the express company doing business over each road, and locating all islands, lakes, rivers, etc.; locates branch railroads upon which each station is situated, the nearest mailing point of all local places, etc.

Among other American atlases may be mentioned: Cram's Atlas of the world (N. Y. Cram, 1901. $10); Bradley's Atlas of the world (Phil. Bradley, 1891. $27); Scribner-Black Atlas of the world (N. Y. Scribner, 1890. $22).

ENGLISH

Johnston, Alexander Keith. Royal atlas of modern geography. F⁵. Lond. Johnston, 1893. £6 6s. 912

There is also a smaller edition of this called the Handy royal atlas (52s. 6d.).

"The Times" atlas. New ed. 120 p. maps, F⁵. Lond. The Times, 1900. 25s. 912

A translation of Andrée's German atlas. An alphabetical index to 150,000 names.

Another well-known English atlas is Bartholomew's Library reference atlas (Lond. Macmillan, 1890. 52s. 6d.). His International student's atlas of modern geography (1902. $2.25) is an admirable small atlas of 105 physical, political, and statistical maps.

A good annotated list of representative atlases and maps from the English standpoint is to be found in Mill's Geographical books for reference and reading, 1897, p. 44-46.

GERMAN

German atlases are the finest specimens of artistic and accurate map-making. Among the most useful for public libraries are:—

Stieler, Adolf. Hand-atlas über alle theile der erde und über das welt gebäude. 198 p. maps, F⁵. Gotha, Perthes, 1902. $10. 912

Alphabetical index at the end of the volume.

"Probably the only atlas which continues from time to time to be constructed throughout from original materials on scientific principles. Has for long held the foremost place among all atlases." Sonnenschein's Best books.

Andrée, Karl Theodor. Andrées allgemeiner handatlas in 126 haupt- und 137 nebenkarten. Ed. 4 enl. 179 p. 186 maps, F⁵. Bielefeld, Velhagen, 1899. $7. 912

An excellent cheap atlas.

HISTORICAL

Poole, Reginald Lane. Historical atlas of modern Europe, from the decline of the Roman empire, comprising also maps of parts of Asia and of the New World connected with European history. Pts. 1-28, maps, F. Ox. Clarendon press, 1896-1900. 3s. 6d. each pt. 911

To be completed in 30 parts.

Each map is accompanied by explanatory text. Its special feature is a series of 17 maps illustrating the historical geography of the British Isles.

Labberton, Robert Henlopen. Historical atlas, 3800 B. C. to 1900 A. D. Ed. 16. 72 maps, Q. N. Y. Silver, 1901. $1.25. 911

A useful up-to-date small atlas.

Freeman, Edward Augustus. Historical geography of Europe. Ed. 2. 2v. O. Lond. Longmans, 1882. 31s. 6d. 911

v. 1, text; v. 2, maps.

Not strictly an historical atlas, but is designed simply to show the boundaries of states and their changes. Deals with "geography as influenced by history and with history as influenced by geography."

"The work as a whole cannot fail to be of great service to every thoughtful student." C. K. Adams.

Among other good historical atlases may be mentioned: Hand-atlas der geschichte by Spruner, published in 1880, a large, expensive work, but one of the best, and Smith's Atlas of ancient geography, biblical and classical (Bost. Little. $40), designed to accompany his Dictionaries of classical antiquities.

Smith, Sir William. Dictionary of Greek and Roman geography. . . . 2v. il. maps, O. Lond. Murray, 1873-78. 56s. (Bost. Little. $12.) 913.38

Designed mainly to illustrate Greek and Roman writers. It is historical as well as geographical, to 476 A. D.

Illustrated by plans of cities, districts, and battles, representations of public buildings, etc.

GUIDE-BOOKS

The small volumes so well known to all travellers as "Guide-Books" are of much assistance in a reference library. They are usually well indexed, and may be easily consulted for special information on subjects not dealt with fully in the gazetteers and other books of reference. Baedeker's or Murray's series of guide-books are in frequent use for such purpose. The latest edition should be consulted. There should be also in the reference library a guide-book of the city in which the library is located.

HISTORY

Larned, Josephus Nelson. History for ready reference from the best historians and specialists. Rev. and enl. ed. 6v. il. maps, Q. Sprgf. [Mass.], Nichols, 1901, [c 1895-1901]. $30. 903

Extracts from the writings of the best historians, biographers, and specialists to illustrate the history of all countries and times. It is not a condensation, but gives the exact words of the writers quoted. The arrangement is alphabetical by country, event, etc., and under place is chronological. There are numerous cross references. Volume 6 is devoted to recent history from 1894 to 1901.

In the 1901 edition "some subjects not treated before have been introduced, and the treatment of some others has been amplified, while matter which appeared as a Supplement in the earlier editions is now given its alphabetical and chronological place in the main body of the work."

PERIODICALS, ESSAYS, DISSERTATIONS

INDEXES AND LISTS

PERIODICALS

Periodicals in a library serve two purposes: first, as current literature of the day, they are a record of the thought of the present, and second, in the form of bound volumes, they are a permanent record of the thought of the past. It is in the latter form more particularly that they become a part of the reference collection and are usually kept in the so-called "reference department" of a general library.

A good collection of bound volumes of the well-known periodicals is almost indispensable to a public library. A large reference library will have so far as possible complete sets of all periodicals indexed in "Poole." These important reference books contain a vast amount of valuable material on all subjects, much of which cannot be found elsewhere. All of this would be inaccessible without that most useful key, the Index to periodical literature, originally compiled by W. F. Poole in one volume, afterwards revised and enlarged, and brought down to date by supplementary volumes. The periodicals indexed in this great work do not include technical and scientific journals.

In order that the collection of periodicals may be made readily useful, a list, specifying the exact volumes contained in the Library which are indexed in Poole and other indexes, must be kept in a conspicuous place near these indexes.

GENERAL INDEXES

ENGLISH

Poole, William Frederick, and Fletcher, W. I: Index to periodical literature. . . . 1802-81. Rev. ed. 2v. Q. Bost. Houghton, 1891, [c'86]. $16. 050

——— Supplements, Jan. 1882-Dec. 1901. 4v. Q. Bost. Houghton, [c'1887-1902].* $36. 050

An index to such general periodicals in the English language as are apt to be found in libraries, arranged under subjects. Reference is made to volume and page of the periodical where the article will be found. A list of serials indexed is given in front of each volume. It is important that the volumes of periodicals in a library should be numbered to correspond to the volume numbers in the Index, as in a periodical issued in more than one series the numbering is usually consecutive in the Index. One must therefore understand the Chronological conspectus which is in the front of each volume.

Fletcher, William Isaac, and Bowker,

* Continued five-yearly.

R: R. Annual literary index. . . . 1892-1901. 10v. Q. N. Y. Publishers' weekly, 1893-1902.* $3.50 per vol. 050

In these annual volumes periodicals are indexed under subjects, with a separate author index. About 137 English and American periodicals are indexed each year. In addition, each volume includes the annual index to parts of books, essays, etc., thus supplementing also the A. L. A. index of general literature; also a necrology, an index to dates of the year which can serve as a guide to newspaper articles, and a list of special bibliographies.

Fletcher, William Isaac, and Poole, Mary. Poole's index to periodical literature. Abridged ed. 843 p. Q. Bost. Houghton, 1901. $12. 050

A condensation of Poole's Index, including all references to 37 popular periodicals still published, to the end of 1899. Designed especially for the small library, but of great value to all libraries, large or small, on account of its one alphabet and the fact that it gives references enough for all ordinary work.

odicals, 1896-1902. v. 1-7, Q. Cleveland, Cumulative index co. 1897-1902. $5 per year. 050

Started by the Cleveland public library (v. 1-3), continued by the Helman-Taylor co. (v. 4), then by the Cumulative index co. (v. 5-7).

Published monthly, and cumulates quarterly. The quarterly indexes should be bound together with the index for the year, which is much condensed. Indexes 50 periodicals. Fuller than the Annual literary index, which, however, indexes more periodicals.

The indexing is by authors, titles, subjects. Portraits and book reviews are indexed.

Reader's guide to periodical literature, [monthly], Jan. 1901-02. v. 1-2, O. Minneapolis, Wilson, 1901-02. $1 per year. 050

A more limited index than the Cumulative, including from 15 to 20 popular periodicals. Index cumulates monthly, the December number being a record for the whole year. Suitable for a very small library.

Review of reviews. Index to periodicals . . . 1890-1901. v. 1-12, sq. Q. Lond. Review of reviews, 1891-1902.* $1 per vol. 050

An alphabetical subject index to more than 107 periodicals, including about 70 not in Poole nor the Cumulative, of which a large number are English magazines little known except in the largest American libraries. The American monthly review of reviews contains an index to the periodical literature of each month.

Jones, Leonard Augustus. Index to legal periodical literature. 2v. O. Bost. Boston book co. 1888-99. $20. 340.5

v. 1, to 1887; v. 2, 1887-99.

A very complete index to articles on law and legislation in general as well as legal periodicals. The second volume includes also articles on political science, economics, and sociology, making it useful in a general library.

A large number of indexes to separate periodicals have been compiled. A list of such indexes is contained in the Handbook for readers of the Boston public library (1890), p. 263-311. A longer and more recent list is to be found in Stein's Manuel de bibliographie générale (1897), p. 637-710 (tables générales de périodiques de toutes langues).

Many of these special indexes will be found most useful, particularly those to general and technical journals not contained in "Poole." The following may be mentioned as a few examples of special indexes to magazines of value in the average library:—

American architect and building news. Index. 1876-86. Of special use as an index to the plates.

Harper's weekly. Index. 1857-87.

Library journal. Index. v. 1-22. $3.

Littell's living age. Index. 1844-96.

Nation. Analytical index to the political contents. 1865-82.

* Continued annually.

North American review. Index. 1878.

Popular science monthly. Index. 1872-92.

Revue des deux mondes. Table générale. 4v. 1831-74, 1874-86, 1886-93, 1893-1900.

Scientific American supplement. Catalogue of some of the valuable papers. 1886.

Other general magazines, such as the Atlantic, Harper's monthly, etc., have published separate indexes. These are important on account of the author entries, which are fuller than in "Poole." They contain, besides, more cross-references, and they index portraits.

FRENCH

Jordell, D. Répertoire bibliographique des principales revues françaises, 1897-99. v. 1-3, Q. Paris, 1898-1900.* $2.50 per vol. 054

By subjects with author index; about 350 periodicals are indexed.

GERMAN

Dietrich, F. Bibliographie der deutschen zeitschriften litteratur, 1896-1901. v. 1-8, sq. Q. Lpz. 1897-1902.* $2.50 per vol. 053

Indexes about 1300 periodicals by subjects with author index and an alphabetical list of the periodicals indexed, giving their editors, publishers, frequency of publication, and price. Chiefly scientific.

GENERAL LISTS

Among the most important lists of serials, including periodicals and society publications, are:—

British museum—Library. Catalogue of printed books; periodical publications. 1210 col. F. Lond. Clowes, 1885-86. 016.05

Arranged by places with the index by titles. A new revised edition, 1899-1900 (26s.), has been published.

UNION LISTS

Library of Congress. Union list of periodicals, transactions, and allied publications currently received in the principal libraries of the District of Columbia; comp. under the direction of A. P. C. Griffin. 315 p. Q. Wash. Government printing office, 1901. free. 016.05

Useful as giving titles of a large collection of periodicals.

The libraries of Boston, New York city, and Chicago have also prepared union lists of periodicals, and others are in course of preparation.

For a bibliography of union lists see article by Clement W. Andrews in Lib. jour. 24: C29-32. The bibliography was compiled by A. G. S. Josephson.

* Continued annually.

TECHNICAL INDEXES

Repertorium der technischen journal literatur, 1879-99. Q. Ber. Heymann, 1881-1900.* 24m. per vol. o50

A subject index of technical and scientific periodicals, compiled by order of the Imperial patent office. There is also an author index, and a list of periodicals indexed.

From 1823 to 1878 published as Repertorium der technischen litteratur.

"Beginning with the 1892 number, the index gives the German equivalent for the English technical terms, which practically serves for the use of English readers as a key to all the previous volumes." Lib. jour. 19: C80.

Royal society of London. Catalogue of scientific papers, 1800-83. 12v. sq. Q. Lond. 1867-1902. about $50. o16.5

v. 1-6, 1800-63; v. 7-8, 1864-73; v. 9-11, 1874-83; v. 12, Supplementary.

An author index to the serial literature of science, comprising transactions and journals published between 1800 and 1883, with the reference, date, and number of pages.

Association of engineering societies. Descriptive index of current engineering literature, 1884-95. 2v. O. N. Y. Engineering magazine, 1892-96. $4 per vol. o16.62

Suplee, Henry Harrison, and Cuntz, T. H. Engineering index, five years, 1896-1900. N. Y. Engineering magazine, 1901. $7.50.

A continuation of the preceding.

Indicates the character and purpose of each article described. Indexes more than 200 periodical technical publications.

Continued monthly in the Engineering magazine, which for each month has an index giving a classified list of articles published in the current numbers of the important technical journals (about 190) of the U. S., Great Britain, and the Continent.

Galloupe's Index to engineering periodicals, 1883-92, in 2 vols., is an American index arranged alphabetically by subjects.

The Engineering news has issued an index volume for the years 1890-99. ($2.50.)

The Franklin institute has an index to its Journal, v. 1-120, 1826-85. ($5.)

The Electrical world has published an Index to the articles in its numbers from 1883 to 1896. ($8.)

The Electrical world and engineer publishes in each number a digest of current electrical literature by subjects.

Renaut's Collective index of the Journal of the Society of chemical industries, 1882-95 (v. 1-14). Lond. 1899. ($5.)

The Catalogue of the United States Surgeon-general's office indexes medical periodicals, and is supplemented by the Index medicus, which continues the work through the current journals to May, 1898.

The large libraries of the country will have on file the printed card index (authors and subjects) to current numbers of 184 technical periodicals. These cards are prepared under the direction of the A. L. A. Publishing Board by coöperating libraries. The indexing was begun in 1898.

Some large libraries have also on file special card indexes, such as that of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, which has issued a card index to its publications since 1899. The list of books in the reading-room of the John Crerar library mentions nine such indexes on file for the use of its readers.

TECHNICAL LISTS

The following catalogs of technical journals are important:—

Bolton, Henry Carrington. Catalogue of scientific and technical periodicals, 1665-1895. . . . With chronological tables and a library check-list. Ed. 2. 1247 p. O. Wash. Smithsonian inst., 1897. (Smithsonian misc. coll.) free. o16.505

Ed. 1, in 1885. Contains a list of the principal periodicals of every branch of pure and applied science, published in all countries from 1665 to 1895. Gives full titles, names of editors, sequence of series, and the names of the libraries of the U. S. in which complete sets can be found. Arranged alphabetically under title.

Scudder, Samuel Hubbard. Catalogue of scientific serials of all countries, including the transactions of learned societies, 1633-1876. 358 p. O. Camb. 1879. $4. (Harvard univ. library. Special publications, no. 1.) o16.5

Alphabetically by countries, with an index of towns, an index of titles, and an index of minor subjects.

NEWSPAPERS

Bound volumes of newspapers are kept in almost all general libraries. They constitute a most important record of the history of the day. In some libraries the files are limited to the newspapers of the locality. The large libraries of the United States will, however, contain files of leading New York papers and often of representative papers of the east, west, north, and south, as well as of a London paper such as the Times.

Of the newspapers, few have indexes. It is well to remember that the New York Daily

Tribune (yearly, price $1, pap.), the New York Times, and the London Times (quarterly, 10s. 6d.) have indexes, and these will be found to be of the greatest value to libraries having files of these papers.

These indexes may be used for other newspapers, the date being the clue to where a subject may be found.

AMERICAN

Ayer & son, N. W. American newspaper annual, 1902. Q. Phil. Ayer, 1902.* $3. 071

A list of newspapers and periodicals published in the U. S. and Canada, with information regarding their circulation, issue, date of establishment, political or other distinctive features, names of editors and publishers, etc. The first arrangement is by states, giving population of towns, principal industries, etc., including Cuba, Hawaii, and Porto Rico. Then follows arrangement by counties, a class list of publications, and a list of publications in foreign languages.

Rowell, Geo. P. & co. American newspaper directory (issued quarterly). 32d year, O. N. Y. Rowell, 1900.* $5 for each issue; $20 per year. 071

Description of all the newspapers and periodicals in the U. S. and Canada, giving details regarding circulation, editors, politics, etc. Arranged by states, with a classed list of publications. Revised and issued quarterly. The arrangement is not so convenient as that of Ayer's, being under state by frequency of publication, while in Ayer the arrangement is alphabetical by title.

U. S. — Census office. History and present condition of the newspapers and periodical press of the U. S., with a catalogue of the publications of the census year, by S. N. D. North. 446 p. F. Wash. Government printing office, 1884. free. 317.3

The list of periodicals gives frequency of publication, character, when established, and price.

New Jersey historical society. Some account of American newspapers, particularly of the 18th century, and libraries in which they may be found. v. 1-3, O. Paterson, Press pr. and pub. co. 1894-97. (In its New Jersey archives. 1894-97. Ser. 1, v. 11, 12, 19.) 974.9

Gives a brief history of every newspaper printed in North America prior to 1801, and tells in what libraries they may be found. From A. to New Hampshire.

Wisconsin state historical society — Library. Annotated catalogue of newspaper files in the library. . . . 375 p. O. Madison, Democrat pr. co. 1898. 016.07

In two parts, showing the newspapers arranged (1) geographically and (2) chronologically. Gives a bibliographical and historical description of each journal. Index. The collection of papers is an unusually large and important one, numbering more than 10,000 volumes.

Library of Congress. Check list of American newspapers in the Library of Congress, comp. under the direction of A. B. Slauson. 292 p. Q. Wash. Government printing office, 1901. free. 016.07

A list of a large collection of newspapers, arranged by states and cities, with indexes of titles and of cities.

ENGLISH

Sell's dictionary of the world's press and annual of useful commercial knowledge, 1899. 2v. por. map, O. Lond. 1898.* 7s. 6d. 070

Contents: v. 1, Newspaper section; v. 2, Commercial section.

County list of all newspapers published in the United Kingdom, list of magazines and periodicals published in the United Kingdom, newspapers published in other countries, giving name in vernacular, name in English, when published, and brief description.

Willing's press guide and advertisers' directory and hand-book, 1901. v. 28, O. Lond. Willing, 1901.* 1s. 072

A concise and comprehensive index to the press of the United Kingdom, containing an alphabetical list, a classified list, a list according to date of publication, a local list, and a list of the chief American and continental newspapers.

FRENCH

Annuaire de la presse française et du monde politique, 1901. O. Paris, 1901.* 15fr. 074

French newspapers and periodicals, including some foreign. Indexes.

GENERAL LITERATURE AND ESSAYS

Fletcher, William Isaac. The "A. L. A." index; an index to general literature. . . . Ed. 2 enl. and brought down to Jan. 1, 1900. 679 p. Q. Bost. Houghton, 1901. $10. 040

Issued by the Publishing Board of the American library association.

Refers under the subject to essays, papers, monographs, and other parts of books which are of sufficient value, including some reports and publications of boards dealing with sociological affairs. Books in the English language only are included. A list of the books indexed is given at the end of the volume. This list can be checked with call numbers in the library, thus saving time in looking up references by showing what the library has and where it may be found.

Griswold, William Maccrillis. Index to articles relating to history, biography, literature, society, and travel contained in collections of essays. Ed. 2 rev. 56 p. O. Bangor, Q. P. index, 1884. o. p. 040

Essays are indexed under subjects. In order to make the index concise, the compiler refers under subjects to numbers; the volumes, representing the numbers are to be found by means of the key in the front of the book.

Cotgreave, Alfred. A contents-subject index to general and periodical literature. 743 p. por. O. Lond. Stock, 1900. 10s. 6d. 028

"The chief aim of the work is not to give everything which appears in a select number of works on a few selected subjects, but rather to cover as many subjects as possible, and give a few references to each one." Preface.

Contains a chapter on Subject indexes to general literature.

California university — Library. Contents-index. v. 1, O. Berkeley, State pr. 1889-90. 028

An index of the contents of many books and periodicals in the Library of the University of California, including sets not indexed by Poole, some in foreign languages (as the Revue des deux mondes), and some technical journals. Many of the books indexed have since been included in the A. L. A. index, but there still remains a sufficient number not elsewhere indexed to make this volume occasionally useful.

Other valuable references to subjects in essays and parts of books will be found in the analytical work of the catalogs of the Peabody institute library, the Brooklyn library, the Boston Athenæum, and the Cleveland public library.

The British essayists, 38 vols., a set which includes a collection of the essays of the important English writers of the 18th century (such as those of the Spectator, the Rambler, etc.), has an index volume which is sometimes found helpful.

Wheatley's What is an index? (Lond. 1878) gives, besides an interesting historical account of indexes, a preliminary list of English indexes published in separate volumes, p. 72-96.

The following useful aids may, perhaps, be best included here:—

Brookings, Walter Du Bois, and Ringwalt, R. C. Briefs for debate on current political, economic, and social topics. 213 p. D. N. Y. Longmans, 1897. $1.25. 028

Its aim is "to state concisely the principal arguments pro and con, on a large number of the important topics of the day," and to refer to books, parts of books, and periodical articles upon each subject. A most useful handbook.

Matson, Henry. References for literary workers. 582 p. O. Chic. McClurg, 1892. $2.50. 028

The author gives topics and questions for debate, with references to books, articles in periodicals, and essays of value in working up a subject. Alphabetical index of subjects.

DISSERTATIONS

In university and college libraries the following indexes to dissertations will be found most helpful:—

FRANCE

Mourier, Athénais, and Deltour, F. Notice sur le doctorat ès lettres, suivie du catalogue et de l'analyse des thèses françaises et latines admises par les facultés des lettres depuis 1810. O. Paris, Delalain frères, 1880. 378.44

Arranged by "facultés" under each year. Author and subject indexes.

SOCIETY PUBLICATIONS

Reports and transactions of learned societies are essential to the student who would investigate his subject thoroughly, and they often furnish needed information to the general inquirer as well. Every reference library will have a number of these important sets. The student and reference librarian must therefore know their scope and value.

INDEXES AND CATALOGS

The following catalogs and lists will be of assistance in finding information about learned societies, and what has been published by these bodies:—

GENERAL

Smithsonian institution. International exchange list corrected to July, 1897. 331 p. O. Wash. Smithsonian institution, 1897. free.

lications of many of the societies are given in the first volume. The following years include lists of papers read or published, with the names of their authors.

Lowndes's Bibliographer's manual (1857–64) contains as an appendix (apx. p. 1–196) a complete list of all the books printed by the literary and scientific societies of Great Britain, "with such particulars respecting them as are likely to be useful to the scholar and collector."

Wheatley's How to form a library (1887), p. 184–216, gives a brief account of the history of many of the literary societies of England.

The English catalogue of books to 1899 contains in an appendix to each volume a list of learned societies, printing clubs, and other literary associations, with lists of their publications.

The Annual English catalogue for 1901 includes a list of learned societies and their publications for that year.

Every library has a larger or smaller collection of the documents of the city, the state, and the nation. To be of use such documents must be carefully classified, cataloged, and placed where they can be readily found, instead of piled up, as is often the case, in out of the way corners where they cannot be consulted when wanted.

UNITED STATES PUBLIC DOCUMENTS

A public document is strictly defined to be "all publications printed by order of Congress or by either House thereof," but the term is used to include the departmental as well as the congressional documents.

Congress publishes for each session: —

Congressional record (published daily during the session); Abridgment of Messages of the President and Reports of departments; Statutes and recent treaties and executive proclamations.

Senate publishes for each session: —

Journal; Senate documents; Senate reports.

House publishes for each session: —

Journal; House documents; House reports.

Before the 54th congress (December, 1895) each House published its journal, executive documents, miscellaneous documents, and reports of committees.

The departments of the U. S. government are: State, Treasury, War, Navy, Justice, Post-office, Interior, Agriculture, Labor, the District of Columbia, and several independent bureaus and institutions. All of these issue reports separately, and the various subordinate bureaus, divisions, etc., of each department also issue their special publications.

Publications of the national government appear in two forms: first, the leather (or sheep) bound set (sheep-bound or congressional reserve), which volumes are commonly known as "congressional documents," including the publications of the Senate and of the House; second, the cloth-bound sets, including reports and publications of the several departments and their bureaus. The same document may appear in two or more forms; e. g. the Annual report of the Commissioner of education appears separately as a publication of the Bureau, then as part of the Report of the Secretary of the Interior, and again as one of the House documents in the series of congressional documents.

A "depository" library is one that is designated to receive, store, and keep for use the publications of the U. S. government. In every large city or town there is usually at least one depository library. Other libraries may not aim to collect all publications of the national government, but no general library however small can afford to be without the reports of some of the important departments and bureaus. The government publishes many valuable documents on subjects of general interest. Each library must select what will be of most use to its readers, and refer to the nearest depository library when it has not the needed document on its shelves. Designated depositories are enumerated in the Report of the Superintendent of Documents, issued separately, and also in the Report of the Public Printer.

The Catalogue of U. S. public documents, issued monthly, tells how all documents may be obtained.

INDEXES AND CATALOGS

In order to use the documents to the best advantage, it is necessary to know thoroughly the following indexes and catalogs:—

U. S. — Documents office. Check-list of public documents from the 1st to the 53d congress. Ed. 2 enl. 222 p. O. Wash. Government printing office, 1895. free. 016.353

First ed. by J. G. Ames, 1892, was from the 15th to the 51st congress.

Second ed. by F. A. Crandall.

An itemized list of the volumes which constitute the set of Congressional documents, with the number or numbers contained in each. Appendices contain list of Debates and proceedings of Congress for the same period, and of the Miscellaneous series of public documents arranged by departments, enumerating their publications, also a list of government catalogs, showing what lists each department or bureau has published to 1895, and an index showing where in the set of Congressional documents the more important executive and other reports may be found.

This is being superseded by a much extended new edition to be completed in three volumes, the second volume of which has been published under the title:

— Table of and annotated index to the congressional series of United States public documents. 769 p. sq. Q. Wash. Government printing office, 1902. free. 016.353

It gives a list of the documents of the 15th to the 52d congress inclusive, with a full annotated index. Part 1 will contain a list of the documents of the 1st to the 14th congress; part 3 a list of the reports and miscellaneous publications of the executive departments, bureaus, and other offices of the government, printed without congressional numbers.

This is the most important of the indexes of U. S. public documents, and will make it less necessary to refer to Poore's imperfect list.

Poore, Benjamin Perley. Descriptive catalogue of the government publications of the United States, Sept. 5, 1774, to March 4, 1881. 1392 p. sq. Q. Wash. Government printing office, 1883. o. p. 015.73

A chronological list of books, pamphlets, or documents, with the names of authors, dates of publication, where they are to be found, and a brief abstract of the contents of each. With an analytical index (alphabetical) referring to the numbers of the pages on which documents are entered. Arrangement is defective, and index is not easy to use.

Criticism by R. R. Bowker in Lib. jour. 10: 4-5.

Ames, John Griffith. Comprehensive index of the publications of the United States government, 1889-93. 480 p. sq. Q. Wash. Government printing office, 1894. free. 015.73

Arranged in three columns. In the first is given the author of the document or department by which it is issued; in the second, an alphabetical list of documents arranged by subjects and titles; in the third, reference is made to the congress, session, the volume of the series in which each is embraced, and the serial number of the document. A personal index is added.

U. S. — Documents office. Catalogue of the public documents of . . . Congress and of all departments of the government of the United States for the period, March 4, 1893, . . . to June 30, 1899. 4v. Q. Wash. Government printing office, 1896-1901. free. 015.73

v. 1, 53d congress; v. 2, 54th congress, 1st session; v. 3, 54th congress, 2d session; v. 4, 55th congress.

The Comprehensive index provided for by the act approved Jan. 12, 1895.

Authors, titles, and subjects in one alphabet. After each entry is given in parentheses the number of the document, the session to which it belongs, and the volume in which it is bound. At the end of the volume is a useful list of the departments, bureaus, divisions, etc., represented in the catalog. Known as the Document catalog.

— Catalogue of United States public documents, issued monthly, 1895-1902. O. Wash. Government printing office, 1895-1902. free. 015.73

A list of documents printed by the government during the month, arranged under name of department. Tells how documents of each bureau, division, etc., may be obtained. Index, beginning with the year 1900, is made cumulative for half-yearly periods.

— Index to the subjects of the documents and reports, and to the committees, senators, and representatives presenting them . . . (being the Consolidated index provided for by the act of Jan. 12, 1895), 54th cong. 1st sess.—56th cong. 2d sess. 7v. O. Wash. Government printing office, 1897–1902. free. 015.73

Binder's title: Document index, by which name this series is known. An entry of every document may be found under its subject or subjects, and the name of the member or committee presenting it, with a numerical table of the documents and reports and schedule of the volumes of the documents.

Hickcox, John Howard. United States government publications; a monthly catalogue, 1885–94. 10v. O. Wash. Lowdermilk, 1885–94. 015.73

No more published.

Contains the titles of all the official publications of the U. S. for each month, arranged alphabetically under authors' name, as regards special treatises; also under topics for congressional documents. Index to each volume.

The index and review, 1901–02. v. 1, O. Wash. Young, 1901–02. $1 per year. 015.73

A monthly journal, containing a list of all publications of the U. S. government issued during the month. Similar in scope to the Monthly catalogue issued by the Superintendent of documents, of which not a sufficient number of copies to meet the demand can be printed.

Greely, Adolphus Washington. Public documents of the first 14 congresses, 1789–1817; papers relating to early congressional documents. 903 p. O. Wash. Government printing office, 1900. (56th cong. 1st sess. Senate doc. no. 428.) free. 015.73

Hasse, Adelaide Rosalia. Reports of explorations printed in the documents of the United States government. . . . 90 p. O. Wash. Government printing office, 1899. free. 015.73

Alphabetical list by authors and subjects.

Indiana — State library. Subject catalogue of United States public documents. 289 p. O. Indianapolis, State printer, 1900. (In its Biennial report of the librarian for 1900.) free. 027.5

Alphabetical list by subjects of the documents in the State library. Articles of general interest contained in the congressional documents, and especially of those of importance to this library, have been indexed under their subjects.

Michigan — State library. Catalogue, United States documents, state documents, foreign exchanges. 276 p. O. Lansing, Robert Smith pr. co. 1898. free. 016.353

Alphabetically by countries; U. S. department documents have contents very fully given.

Library catalogs of use in looking up information concerning documents are those of the Boston public library (Bost. 1861, and Bost. 1866), which contain indexes to the publications of the early congresses, the Boston Athenæum, the Peabody institute library, and the Massachusetts state library.

The series of the American catalogue for 1876–84, 1884–90, 1890–95, contain appendixes of U. S. government publications, arranged alphabetically by departments, with divisions and bureaus subordinated.

Some departments and bureaus have issued separate catalogs and indexes of their publications, a list of which (to 1895) will be found as an appendix to the Check-list (Ed. 2). Among these may be mentioned here:—

U. S. — Bureau of education. Publications from 1867 to 1890, with subject index. p. 1453–1551, O. Wash. Government printing office, 1891. free. 015.73

Reprinted from chapter 35 of the report of the Commissioner of education for 1888–89.

U. S. — Consuls. Consular reports; index v. 1–63. 6v. O. Wash. Government printing office, 1883–1901. free. 382

The index to Consular reports is issued at intervals.

U. S. — Dept. of agriculture. List of publications from 1841 to June 30, 1895, inclusive. 76 p. O. Wash. Government printing office, 1896. free. 015.73

Compiled by A. R. Hasse.

U. S. — Dept. of agriculture — Division of publications. Index to authors, with titles of their publications appearing in the documents of the U. S. Dept. of agriculture, 1841–1897, by G. F. Thompson, under direction of G. W. Hill. 303 p. O. Wash. Government printing office, 1898. (Bulletin, No. 4.) free. 015.73

U. S. — Coast and geodetic survey. Bibliography; descriptive catalogue of publications relating to the U. S. Coast and geodetic survey, 1807 to 1896. 118 p. O. Wash. Government printing office, 1898. free. 015.73

U. S. — National museum. List of publications, 1875–1900 . . . with indexes to titles, by R. I. Geare. 168 p. O. Wash. Government printing office, 1902. (Bulletin, No. 51.) free. 015.73

Lunt's Key to the publications of the United States census, 1790–1887, contained in the American statistical association, Publications, 1: 63–125, gives a bibliography and groups by subjects the contents of the census reports.

STATE AND CITY DOCUMENTS

Large libraries must have the reports of the departments of their state and municipal governments. These are issued in different ways in the various states and cities. Small libraries will find use for only a limited number of these reports, and need not collect other than those of their own city and state. Among reports of general interest are those of the departments of education, labor, railroads, fisheries, and agriculture.

An important catalog of state publications has been begun by R. R. Bowker:—

Bowker, Richard Rogers. State publications; a provisional list of the official publications of the several states of the U. S. from their organization. v. 1, sq. O. N. Y. Publishers' weekly, 1899. $2. 016.3539

v. 1: New England states.

A check-list of state publications, with extra margins for insertions, arranged in geographical order. Entry is made under the office or officer responsible for the issue of the document.

The lists forming appendixes to the American catalogue, from 1876-84 to 1890-95, inclusive, were used as a basis for the above.

The following is a partial list of bibliographies of state documents, some additional titles of which will be found in the article by A. R. Hasse in Pub. lib. 6: 28-34: Alabama: Owen's Bibliography of Alabama. (In American historical association. Annual report. 1899. v. 1.) Cole's Bibliography of the statute law of the southern states. (In Southern history association. Publications. v. 1. 1897.) Arkansas: Cole's Bibliography of the statute law of the southern states, pt. 2, Arkansas. (In Southern history association. Publications. v. 1. 1897.)

Indiana: Howe's Descriptive catalogue of the official publications of Indiana from 1800 to 1890. (Indiana historical society. Pamphlets, No. 5.) Kansas: The Transactions of the Kansas state historical association, 1897-1900, v. 6, contains a list of Kansas state publications. Maine: Williamson's Bibliography of the state of Maine to 1891. (Portland, The Thurston print, 1896. 2v.) Mississippi: Owen's Bibliography of Mississippi. (In American historical association. Annual report. 1899. v. 1.) New Hampshire: Report of the state librarian of New Hampshire for 1891 contains an index list of reports and documents. New Jersey: Report of the state librarian of New Jersey for 1900 contains a list of New Jersey books and pamphlets in the general library. Ohio: Hayes's Publications of the state of Ohio, 1803-96. (Norwalk, 1897.) Pennsylvania: Report of the state librarian of Pennsylvania for 1899 contains a check-list of the laws, minutes, journals, and documents published in Pennsylvania, 1682-1897. Texas: Raines's Bibliography of Texas; being a descriptive list of books, pamphlets, and documents. (Austin, 1896.)

FOREIGN

American library association — Committee on foreign documents. Partial list of French government serials in American libraries. p. 97-164, O. Alb. Univ. of state of N. Y., 1902. (N. Y. (state) — Library. Bulletin, 70.) 15 cts. 015.44

"The aim has been simply to produce a title list of serials found in certain American libraries. . . . The scope of the work is defined in its title—'A partial list of French government serials.'" Preface.

The list specifies in what libraries the documents may be found. There is an index of offices.

The student of reference work will find the study of bibliography most essential, inasmuch as bibliographies serve to guide to the best authorities on a subject; to the best editions of books; to information as to what has been written by an author, or on a special subject; to the author of a book when only the title is known; to what has been published in a certain country; to the price of a book; to the value and collation of rare books, and to much other important information.

In a work of this character only those bibliographies most necessary to the reference librarian are mentioned.

For a general history of the subject, consult the article Bibliography by E. F. Taylor in the Encyclopædia Britannica, which gives an excellent account.

Bibliography means literally the act or habit of writing books, and is applied to "the science which treats of books, their materials, authors, typography, editions, dates, subjects, classification, history, etc." Another use of the term is applied to "a classified list of authorities or books on any theme, as a bibliography of political economy." (Century dictionary.)

The term bibliography, which is now defined as the science of books, was formerly used to signify the description and deciphering of ancient manuscripts, which science is now known as paleography. De Bure, in his Bibliographie instructive, published in 1763, employed the word in the sense in which it has since been used, applying it to printed books.

There are two kinds of bibliography: material and intellectual (or literary). Material bibliography embraces a description of a book according to its edition, typography, paging, etc. — the external features; while intellectual bibliography has to do with the contents or internal characteristics of the book.

The subject is usually divided into the following sections: —

GENERAL (or universal) bibliography, which includes bibliographies whose object is to enumerate the titles of books of every age and country and on all subjects (e. g. Brunet's Manuel du libraire).

SPECIAL bibliography, which is confined to books on some particular author or subject, and may include all (complete bibliography) or a selection (select bibliography) of the books on that subject or author (e. g. Monroe's Bibliography of education).

NATIONAL bibliography, which gives a record of books printed in a certain country (e. g. Lowndes's Bibliographer's manual). This term is also applied to a list of books about a certain country.

TRADE bibliography, which includes those bibliographies useful in the purchase of books, as giving trade information (e. g. American catalogue of books).

BIBLIOGRAPHY of bibliography, which is a list of bibliographies (e. g. Vallée's Bibliographie des bibliographies).

MISCELLANEOUS (including anonyms, periodicals, etc.).

GENERAL OR UNIVERSAL

Brunet, Jacques Charles. Manuel du libraire et de l'amateur de livres. . . . Ed. 5 enl. 6v. O. Paris, Didot, 1860-65. with Supplement about $65. OII

— Supplément. . . . par P. Deschamps et G. Brunet. 2v. O. Par. Didot, 1878-80. OII

v. 6 of the Manuel is a "table méthodique." Brunet's work is especially valuable for the bibliographical details of the books mentioned. It aims to include the rare and precious books of all kinds from the origin of printing. It gives the history of different editions, distinguishing characteristics of each and their collation, full titles, prices that books have brought at auction, some illustrations, and facsimiles. The arrangement is alphabetical with a classified index, and the supplement includes books not mentioned in the other volumes.

It is probably the most useful book of its kind, although the work of Grässe is considered by some to be more important. Brunet's work contains entries of more books of French writers than Grässe.

Grässe, Johann Georg Theodor. Trésor de livres rares et précieux. . . . 7v. Q. Dresde, 1859-69. o. p. about $60. OII v. 7, Supplément.

"Covers much the same ground as Brunet, but includes also a large number of books that are intrinsically valuable without being rare, and for this reason is preferable if a choice must be made between them." Growoll in his Bookseller's library.

It is based on Brunet, but contains more entries of German books; prices that books brought at sales are given.

Ebert, Friedrich Adolf. General bibliographical dictionary; from the German. 4v. O. Ox. University press, 1837. o. p. 30s. OII

Based upon the early edition of Brunet. Contains many notes descriptive of editions. Especial attention is given to ancient German literature, and the Greek and Latin classics.

Of less value than Brunet or Grässe.

Watt, Robert. Bibliotheca Britannica; or,

A general index to British and foreign literature. 4v. sq. Q. Edin. Constable, 1824. o. p. about $15. OII

Under authors (v. 1-2) are given dates and brief biographical information, a chronological list of works, their edition, place, size, and price (in a few cases). Under subjects (v. 3-4) the titles are arranged chronologically. Anonymous books are given in the subject volumes. Of especial importance for British literature, but includes some books by continental writers.

Georgi, Theophilus. Allgemeines europäisches bücher-lexicon. . . . 5v. and 6v. sup. F. Lpz. 1742-58. o. p. OII

Catalog of the most important authors from the beginning of the 16th century to 1739, giving editions, date, size, place, price, etc. Specially full in German books. v. 5 comprises French books.

Quaritch, Bernard. General catalogue of books offered to the public at the affixed prices. 7v. Q. Lond. 1887-92. o. p. OII

v. 7 is a general index by authors and subjects.

A most useful collection of sales catalogs of one of the largest of bookstores, particularly helpful in finding prices. The annotations are good. There are 100,000 separate entries in the index. Quaritch also constantly issues some Supplementary catalogs on separate subjects, and besides sends out "Rough lists," with a serial number reaching to 210 Jan. 1902.

See also Library Catalogs.

EARLY LITERATURE AND INCUNABULA

Hain, Ludwig Friedrich Theodor. Repertorium bibliographicum. . . . ad annum 1500. . . . 2v. in 4, O. Stuttg. Cotta, 1826-38. o. p. about $35. OII

An authoritative descriptive record of books printed before 1500, arranged alphabetically by authors.

— Indices uberrimi opera Conradi Burger. 428 p. O. Lipsiæ, Harrassowitz, 1891. OII — Supplement to Hain's Repertorium bibliographicum; or, Collections towards a new edition of that work, by W. A. Copinger.

v. 1-2, pt. 1, O. Lond. Sotheran, 1895-98. £4 14s. 6d. OII

v. 2 to the letter O.

v. 1 contains corrections of and additions to the collation of works described in Hain; v. 2 a list of titles not contained in the original work.

Panzer, Georg Wolfgang Franz. Annales typographici ab artis inventæ origine ad annum 1536. . . . 11v. Q. Norimbergæ, 1793-1803.

O. p. OII

Arranged by places and under each chronologically. See descriptive note in Ebert, 3: 1276.

Maittaire, Michael. Annales typographici ab artis inventæ origine ad annum 1664. 5v. Q. Hagæ-Comitum, 1719-41. O. p. OII — Supplementum adornavit M. Denis.

2v. Q. Viennæ, 1789. O. p. OII

Gives additional titles of books.

See descriptive note in Ebert, 3: 1014.

Santander, Carlos Antonio de la Serna de. Dictionnaire bibliographique choisi du quinzième siècle. . . . 3v. O. Bruxelles, 1805-07. O. p. about $7.50. OII

A select list describing the principal editions only.

Pellechet, Marie Catherine Hélène. Catalogue général des incunables des bibliothèques publiques de France. v. 1, Q. Paris, Picard, 1897. 12fr. OII

v. 1, A-Biblia.

Campbell, Frederick Andries Gérardus. Annales de la typographie néerlandaise au xve siècle. 629 p. O. La Haye, Nijhoff, 1874. OII

Contains also Supplements, 1-4, 1878-90.

Proctor, Robert. Index to the early printed books in the British museum from the invention of printing to the year 1500, with notes of those in the Bodleian library. 4v. Q. Lond. Paul, 1898-99. 60s. OII

v. 1, Germany; v. 2, Italy; v. 3, Switzerland to Montenegro; v. 4, Register.

A chronological list under each country by names of presses. The index volume contains an alphabetical list of towns, printers, and publishers, a list of books mentioned in Hain and of those not in Hain, authors of books printed in the Low countries, books printed in England. There is also an annual supplement to the Index.

Catalogs of special printers will also be useful; such are, Willem's Les Elzevier, histoire et annales typographiques (Bruxelles, Van Trigt, 1880), Rénouard's Annales de l'imprimerie des Aldes (Paris, 1834), Blades's Life and typography of William Caxton (Lond. Lilly, 1861-63. 2v.), etc.

NATIONAL AND TRADE

Under this heading is included trade bibliography as well as some other works relating to the bibliography of each country. As in other classes of bibliography, a selection has been made limited to the most useful works. An excellent account of trade bibliography and how to find information contained in it will be found in Growoll's The bookseller's library and how to use it, which should be carefully studied by librarians.

A chapter on "Hints for finding the author, title, publisher, place of publication, date, edition, size or price of books," may be found in Caspar's Directory of the American book and stationery trade (1889), p. 1262-1265.

Another useful list without annotations is:—

New York (state)—Library. Selected national bibliographies. (Library school bulletin no. 7, 1900. . p. 301-330.) 5 cts.

This is the list used in the course in elementary bibliography in the New York state library school. Compiled by W. S. Biscoe.

AMERICAN

For a bibliography of the subject consult:—

A classified list of books published in the U. S. from 1817 to 1857, with author index. Prices of books are given in English money. There are some bibliographical notes.

Roorbach, Orville Augustus. Bibliotheca Americana. . . . 1820-61. . . . 4v. O. N. Y. Roorbach, 1852-61. o. p. about $10. 015.73

v. 1, 1820-52, with a list of periodicals published in the U. S.; v. 2, Supplement, Oct. 1852-May, 1855; v. 3, Addenda, May, 1855-Mar. 1858; v. 4, Mar. 1858-Jan. 1861.

A catalog of American publications, including reprints, arranged alphabetically by authors, giving publisher, date, size, price.

Kelly, James. American catalogue of books published in the United States from Jan. 1861 to Jan. 1871. 2v. O. N. Y. Wiley, 1866-71. $10. 015.73

Continues the record of American bibliography from Roorbach's last volume, giving about the same kind of information. Each volume contains a list of societies and their publications. Volume 1 also contains a list of pamphlets, sermons, and addresses on the Civil war, 1861-66.

American catalogue of books . . . 1876-1900. 5v. sq. F. N. Y. Publishers' weekly, 1881-1901. 015.73

[Ser. 1] Author and title entries of books in print, July 1, 1876; o. p. (about $25); subject entries ($15). 2v.

[Ser. 2] July 1, 1876-Jun. 30, 1884. Author and title alphabet; subject alphabet, 2v. in 1 ($15).

[Ser. 3] July 1, 1884-Jun. 30, 1890. Author and title alphabet; subject alphabet. 2v. in 1 ($15).

[Ser. 4] July 1, 1890-Jun. 30, 1895. Author and title alphabet; subject alphabet. 2v. in 1 ($15).

[Ser. 5] July, 1895-Jan. 1, 1900. Author and title alphabet; subject alphabet. 2v. in 1 ($15).

The American catalogue was founded by F. Leyboldt and continued by R. R. Bowker. The first series records the books for sale, July 1, 1876. Entries include information as to publisher and price of books. An apx. gives a list of bibliographies. A directory of publishers is prefixed to each volume. Series 2-4 have appendixes giving lists of U. S. government publications, publications of literary and scientific societies; series 3-4 has also a list of State publications. These appendixes are omitted in series 5.

The entire series constitutes the most important record of American publications (including reprints and importations).

The United States catalog; books in print, 1899; ed. by G. F. Danforth and M. E. Potter. 2v. Q. Minneapolis, Wilson, [1900]. $12.50. 015.73

A useful title-a-liner catalog, giving trade information for about 150,000 entries arranged under authors; in volume two under the title. It shows the various editions of a book now in print in this country. A directory of publishers is given in volume one. The title index (vol. 2) refers to the author index for bibliographical details. Biographies are entered in the author volume, both under subject and author. This work saves time in looking up trade information for books in print, giving the titles in one alphabet.

Annual

Annual American catalogue, 1886-1901. 16v. Q. N. Y. Publishers' weekly, 1887-1902. $3.50 per vol. 015.73

The main index is arranged by authors, and gives full titles, complete imprint information and prices, with descriptive notes (the same entries as are in the Publishers' weekly's "Weekly record"). There is also a title and subject index, with brief entries. Useful for the annotations, even if a library has the American catalogue for the same period.

OTHER COUNTRIES

The following is a selection of national bibliographies of importance in ascertaining prices and other bibliographical details about books published in several other countries of Europe. These are essential to a large library, but are not usually found in small libraries: Belgian :

Revue bibliographique belge, is a monthly record published since 1889 (Bruxelles, Société belge de librairie), which has an author index to each yearly volume. Danish: Dansk bogfortegnelse (Kjöb. Gad) 1841-92 in 4v. (1841-58, 1859-68, 1869-80, 1881-92) is continued by bi-monthly numbers with an annual alphabetical index. Dutch: Brinkman's Catalogus der boeken, plaat- en kaartwerken die . . . 1850 tot en met 1891 (Amst. Brinkman, 1884-93. 2v.) is continued yearly by Brinkman's alphabetische lijst van boeken, landkaarten (Amst. Brinkman), and by the monthly Nederlandsche bibliographie. Italian: Catalogo collettivo della libreria italiana (Milan, Associazione tipografico-libreria italiana) consists of publishers' catalogs bound together. The last volume (v. 4.), published in 1891, is in two parts, the second part being an alphabetical index. Bibliografia italiana (Milan, Associazione tipografico-libreria italiana), of which 1902 is the 36th year, gives a semi-monthly record of Italian publications and is a republication of the Bollettino delle pubblicazioni italiane of the Biblioteca nazionale centrale di Firenze. Catalogo generale della libreria italiana dall' anno 1847 a tutto il 1899 is an important contribution to Italian bibliography in course of preparation, of which pts. 1-11 (A-D) have appeared (Milan, Associazione tipografico-libreria italiana, 1900-01). Norwegian: Norsk bogfortegnelse (1848-65, 1866-72, 1873-90. 3v.) is continued by the Norsk bogfortegnelse annually. Spanish: Boletín de la librería is a monthly record issued since 1873 (Madrid, Murillo). Swedish: Svensk bok-katalog för åren 1866-95 (Stockholm, Svenska bokförläggare-föreningen, 3v.) is continued yearly by the Arskatalog för svenska bok-handeln.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF BIBLIOGRAPHY

Petzholdt, Julius. Bibliotheca bibliographica; kritisches verzeichniss der das gesamtgebiet der bibliographie betreffenden litteratur des in- und auslandes. 939 p. O. Lpz. Engelmann, 1866. o. p. about $2.

016.01

The most important work of its kind, complete and accurate up to the date of its publication. It is well annotated, and gives prices. It is arranged by classes, with author index.

Stein, Henri. Manuel de bibliographie générale; bibliotheca bibliographica nova. 895 p. O. Paris, Picard, 1897. 18 fr. 016.01

Divisions: Universal bibliographies, national bibliographies, bibliographies of special subjects. Appendixes contain: (1) A list of places which have contained printing establishments before the 19th century, (2) List of periodical indexes in all languages, (3) List of printed catalogs of the principal libraries in the world.

The work is the most recent important bibliography of bibliographies. The author gives critical annotations of many of the titles. There is an index of subjects, but unfortunately none of authors.

Langlois, Charles V. Manuel de bibliographie historique. 239 p. D. Paris, Hachette, 1901. $1.20. 016.9

This is pt. 1, Instruments bibliographiques. It is the intention of the author to continue the work in a second volume.

This edition has no index. The 1896 edition, while not so full, has the advantage of an alphabetical index.

"It has since [its first appearance, 1896] been universally recognized as one of the most useful bibliographical contributions of recent years, and as such indispensable to every library. Perhaps the most important result of the book is that it will promote the systematic study of bibliography in connection with university instruction, and it is greatly to the credit of M. Langlois that he has clearly pointed out the lines upon which this study should be conducted." F. J. Teggart in Lib. jour. 26: 407.

Vallée, Léon. Bibliographie des bibliographies. . . . 773 p. Q. Paris, Terquem, 1883. 016.01

Contains also much interesting information on printing, a dictionary of terms, and useful receipts.

Sabin, Joseph. Bibliography of bibliography; or, A handy book about books which relate to books. . . . 150 p. O. N. Y. Sabin, 1877. $1.50. o16.o1

An alphabetical list of the most important bibliographies of all countries, based upon Power's Handy book about books. Contains critical notices of some of the books mentioned.

Caspar, Charles Nicholas. List of practical bibliographies, trade and library catalogues, etc. (In his Directory of the American book and stationery trade. 1889. p. 1266-1299.)

Growoll, Adolf. Bookseller's library and how to use it. 72 p. D. N. Y. Publishers' weekly, 1891. o. p. o16.o1

The object of this excellent little manual is to make "a guide for the young bookseller to the more important and practical works of reference necessary in his profession." The titles of the books are annotated, giving concise descriptions of their contents.

Contained also in his Profession of bookselling, v. 1.

N. Y. (state)—Library. Selected subject bibliographies. (Library school bulletins, no. 5, 1899. p. 221-265.) 5 cts. o16.o1

The list used in the course in advanced bibliography in the N. Y. state library school. Classified, with author and subject indexes.

Other useful works of this kind are: the list of special bibliographies in the Handbook for readers of the Boston public library (1890, p. 28-262); the lists in the Bibliographical contributions of Harvard university library (nos. 20, 24, 29, and 40); one in the American catalogue of books, 1876, subject volume; another in Sonnenschein's Best books, p. 702-709, and in his Reader's guide, p. 534-542. The John Crerar library is publishing a List of bibliographies of special subjects covering those contained in its collection, which is full in science and the useful arts.

SPECIAL BIBLIOGRAPHIES

A special bibliography is a list of books and articles on some particular subject or author, and may include all or a selection of books on that author or subject. Books of this kind are of much assistance in guiding the student to the best authorities. Of special importance are those with annotations, among the best examples of which are the bibliographies published by the American Library Association, selected and annotated by specialists. In many libraries special bibliographies are of such frequent use that indexes of them are made including those which appear as parts of books and in library bulletins. It is well to keep the most commonly used bibliographies near the catalog, to accustom readers to their use. The titles of such books as the library owns may be starred or the call numbers written in the margins.

Librarians are frequently called upon to prepare special bibliographies (called reading lists, reference lists, etc.) on topics of general interest. These are often printed in their Bulletins or issued separately. The Monthly bulletin of the Providence public library was for long the best-known of these lists. An index to subject bibliographies in library bulletins to December 31, 1897, has been compiled by Mrs. Alice Newman Nachtmann and published in the State library bulletins of bibliography by the University of the State of New York (10cts.), while the Bulletin of bibliography published by the Boston book company contains in each number a quarterly index to reference lists published by libraries, compiled by the Providence public library.

Many authors prepare careful lists of authorities or references on the subjects of their books, which are often most important in looking up the literature of a subject. The Annual literary index contains a list of the special bibliographies of each year.

The Library of Congress has within the past four years issued some special bibliographies which deserve mention, since the publication of these has become one of the features of its Bibliographical division. Many of these are on subjects of current interest in connection with the government of this country. Of these the following may be noticed:—

Alaska and the northwest part of North America, 1888-1898; maps in the Library of Congress. (1898.)

List of books relating to Cuba, with bibliography of maps (1898), which contains also a list of books relating to Hawaii.

List of books, with references to periodicals, relating to the theory of colonization, government of dependencies, protectorates, and related topics. (1900.)

List of books and of articles in periodicals relating to interoceanic canal and railway routes, with a bibliography of U. S. public documents relating to interoceanic communication. (1900.)

List of books, with references to periodicals, on Porto Rico. (1901.)

List of books, with references to periodicals, on the Danish West Indies. (1901.)

List of books, with references to periodicals, on Samoa and Guam. (1901.)

List of books relating to trusts. (1902.)

Bibliographies of special subjects are in this manual included under their subjects with other reference books, e. g. a bibliography of the fine arts will be found with Cyclopedias of the fine arts, as being there most useful. Only a few of the most important and commonly used bibliographies have been mentioned, since on account of their great number it was impracticable to name many of them.

For further lists of subject bibliographies consult the New York state library bulletin entitled Selected subject bibliographies, 1899 (5 cts.), which embraces a number of titles arranged by classes; also the lists included in the bibliographies of bibliography, such as those of Stein, Vallée, Petzholdt, etc.

For the use of college students and specialists, a list is here given of the most important annual summaries of the literature of special subjects. A large number of such summaries is issued each year, especially in Germany and France. The following list is a selection of those in most general use in a reference library. Additional titles will be found in Stein's Manuel de bibliographie générale.* Astronomy: Astronomisches jahresbericht. Biology: L'année biologique; comptes rendus annuels des travaux de biologie générale (Paris, since 1895). Botany: Just's botanischer jahresbericht (Berlin, since 1873). Chemistry: Jahresbericht über die fortschritte der chemie (Giessen, since 1861). Classical philology: Jahresbericht über die fortschritte der classischen altertumswissenschaft, which contains an annual Bibliotheca philologica classica, also issued separately (Berlin, since 1873). Education: Educational review (N. * Also in Langlois's Manuel de bibliographie historique, 1901, p. 170-201.

CHOICE OF BOOKS

Many good manuals have been prepared which give hints on methods and courses of reading. These are often suggestive to persons who wish to pursue some definite line of study or reading, without knowing how to do so. Baldwin's Book-lover, Porter's Books and reading, Harrison's Choice of books, Richardson's Choice of books, Carlyle's On the choice of books, and Emerson's interesting chapter on Books in his Society and solitude, may be mentioned as suggestive aids in this direction. More recent volumes are Koopman's Mastery of books and Spofford's A book for all readers. Other helpful aids are the syllabi with bibliographies published by the University extension society, and some of those published by the University extension department of the University of the State of New York.

Among the more extensive guides for the choice of books are:—

Sonnenschein, William Swan. Best books; a reader's guide to the choice of the best available books. . . . Ed. 2. 1009 p. sq. Q. N. Y. Putnam, 1891. $9. 011

A classified list, with author and title and subject indexes, of 50,000 of the best books, principally in English, although some foreign books are entered. It includes books that are in print; a few out-of-print books are given. The price, size, publisher, and dates of first and last editions are given with a brief characterization of some of the books, and bibliographical notes. The very best books on each subject are indicated by stars.

— Reader's guide to contemporary literature. 775 p. sq. Q. Lond. Sonnenschein, 1895. $7.50. 011

The first supplement to Best books. Contains a large selection of the best contemporary literature, classified and arranged in a manner similar to the preceding volume.

Sargent, E. B., and Wishaw, Bernhard. Guide book to books. 344 p. Q. Lond. Frowde, 1891. 5s. o. p. 011

An alphabetical list of some of the best books, arranged under subjects with occasional brief explanatory and critical notes. The books are mainly confined to those in English. The price, size, and publisher are mentioned. There is an index of authors at the end of the volume.

Perkins, Frederick Beecher. Best reading; hints on the selection of books, on the formation of libraries, public and private, on courses of reading, etc., with a classified bibliography for easy reference. Ed. 4 rev. and enl. 343 p. D. N. Y. Putnam, [c 1877]. 016

Perkins, Frederick Beecher. Best reading; series 2-4; a priced and classified bibliography for easy reference of the more important English and American publications. 3v. D. N. Y. Putnam, 1892-93. $4.50. 016

Edited by Lynds E. Jones.
Now somewhat out of date.

Leypoldt, Augusta Harriet, and Iles, George. List of books for girls and women and their clubs. . . . 161 p. Q. Bost. Library bureau, 1895. $1. 016

A classified list of more than 2000 selected titles, with notes prepared by specialists. The annotations are particularly interesting. One of the best of the selected lists. The title of the book is misleading. The list is equally useful for boys and men.

American library association. Catalog of "A. L. A. library;" 5000 volumes for a popular library, selected by the American library association and shown at the World's Columbian exposition. (U. S. Bureau of education.) 592 p. O. Wash. Government printing office, 1893. free. 017

Classified and dictionary catalogs.
New edition in preparation.

Wisconsin free library commission. Suggestive list of books for a small library recommended by the state library commissions of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, and Idaho. 43 p. O. Madison, Wisconsin free library commission, 1902. free. 028

Its aim is to help book committees in small libraries. A classified list. Distributed by the library commissions named.

As aids in the selection of new books may be mentioned: Fifty best books for a village library, issued annually by the New York state library, and Selection from the best books of the year, with notes, by the same in its State library bulletins (10 cts.).

CHILDREN'S READING

Several guides to children's books have been compiled, and many libraries have issued catalogs of their well-selected collections. In order to make these important lists of use to the individual library, it is well to put opposite the titles in Sargent's Reading for the young (or others) the call numbers of books when they are contained in the library.

Field, Mrs. E. M. The child and his book; some account of the history and progress of children's literature in England. 356 p. il. pl. D. Lond. Gardner, 1891. 6s. 028.5

A most interesting account of the history and progress of children's literature in England to 1825. Not a bibliography, but helpful in the understanding of children's books.

Sargent, John Frederick. Reading for the young; a classified and annotated catalog. 121 p. Q. Bost. Library bureau, 1890. $1. o. p. 028.5

—Supplement. p. 125-225, Q. Bost. Library bureau, 1896. $1. 028.5

The most important guide to children's reading. The notes assist in the selection of books. References under subjects are made to articles in the periodicals for young people. The titles are graded according to the age to which they are adapted. The subject index in the supplement includes the original edition as well.

Hardy, George E. Five hundred books for the young. Ed. 2. 94 p. D. N. Y. Scribner, 1892. 50 cts. 028.5

A graded list, with brief descriptions of the books.

Griswold, William Maccrillis. Descriptive list of books for the young. 175 p. Q. Camb. [Mass.] Griswold, 1895. $1. pap. 028.5

Classified list, with author and subject indexes. The titles are annotated, with critical and descriptive extracts from leading reviews such as the Nation, Athenaeum, etc. Not always a safe guide.

Hewins, Caroline Maria. Books for boys and girls. 31 p. Tt. Bost. Library bureau, 1897. (A. L. A. annotated lists.) 10 cts. 028.5

A brief list prepared as a help in buying books, for parents, teachers, and the smaller libraries. Annotated.

Burt, Mary Elizabeth. Literary landmarks. . . . 156 p. il. pl. D. Bost. Houghton, 1893. 75 cts. 028.5

Guide to good reading for young people. Of special interest to teachers. Contains chapters on theories of children's reading, epigrammatic literature, works of the creative imagination, history, biography, etc., with a list of books.

Caller, Mary Alice. Literary guide for home and school. 205 p. pl. D. N. Y. Merrill, 1892. $1.25. 028.5

For girls.

Salmon, Edward. Juvenile literature as it is. 243 p. D. Lond. Drane, 1888. 6s. 028.5

An account of children's literature of the time in England.

LIBRARY LISTS

Buffalo—Public library. Class-room libraries for public schools, listed by grades; to which is added a list of books suggested for school reference libraries. 133 p. O. Buffalo, Public library, 1902. 31 cts. 028.5

"The chief purpose of this catalogue is to help the teacher to find the book she wants to use in her work or to recommend to her pupils. It has been arranged for grammar school work, with special attention to American history, literature, and geography, nature study, holidays, etc. The catalogue does not pretend to be complete or exhaustive, but gives under each subject heading some available material, including fiction and poetry." Preface.

Graded list, with author-title index, and an alphabetical subject index.

Carnegie library of Pittsburgh. Graded and annotated catalogue of books for the use of the city schools. 317 p. O. [Pittsburgh] Carnegie library, 1900. 50 cts. 028.5

An admirable list, particularly useful on account of the annotations.

Cleveland (O.)—Public library. References to books in the library, intended to aid the third grade teachers of the Cleveland public schools, comp. by M. H. Prentice. 108 p. O. Cleveland, Public library, [c 1898]. 028.5

LIBRARY CATALOGS

Printed catalogs of libraries, especially of the large libraries, are among the useful tools of the bibliographer and reference librarian. Those of the British museum and Bibliothèque nationale are important as general bibliographies.

Author catalogs

British museum — Library. Catalogue of printed books. 393 pts. in 95v. F. Lond. Printed by Clowes, 1881-1900. £84 018.1

— Supplement. v. 1, F. Lond. 1900-01.

v. 1 and parts to Bruyne have been published.

France — Bibliothèque nationale. Catalogue général des livres imprimés. Auteurs. v. 1-8, O. Paris, Imprimerie nationale, 1900-01. 018.1

v. 8 to Bauzon.

Astor library. Catalogue or alphabetical index. 4v. O. N. Y. 1857-61. 018.1

— Supplement; with an alphabetical index of subjects. 605 p. O. N. Y. 1866. 018.1

— Catalogue. 4v. O. Camb. [Mass.] 1886-88. 018.1

Faculty of advocates — Library. Catalogue of the printed books. 7v. Q. Edin. Blackwood, 1857-79. 018.1

v. 7 is a Supplementary volume.

Brief biographical data in volume one.

Dictionary catalogs

Peabody institute of the city of Baltimore. Catalogue of the library. 5v. Q. Balt. 1883-92. $25. 019.1

— Second catalogue, including the additions made since 1882. v. 1-5, Q. Balt. 1896-1901. $5 per vol. 019.1

Full in the line of analyticals and tables of contents.

Boston Athenaeum library. Catalogue. 5v. Q. Bost. 1874-82. in sheets $25. 019.1

Full in analyticals.

Detroit — Public library. General catalogue. . . . 1888. 2v. Q. Detroit, Guley, 1889. $2.50. 019.1

— First supplement, 1889-93. 898 p. Q. Detroit, Bornman, 1894. $1.50. 019.1

Detroit — Public library. General catalogue. Second supplement, 1894-98. 860 p. Q. Detroit, Stone, 1899. $1.50. 019.1

Annual bulletins are also issued.

Other dictionary catalogs of smaller libraries are those of the Cleveland and Grand Rapids public libraries.

Classed catalogs

Milwaukee — Public library. Systematic catalogue, with alphabetical author, title, and subject indexes, 1885. 836 p. pl. Q. Milwaukee, 1885-86. $3.50. 017.1

— Quarterly index of additions, 1886-1902.

Q. Milwaukee, 1888-1902. $3.50. 017.1

Osterhout free library, Wilkesbarré, Pa. Class catalogue and author index. 432 p. O. Wilkesbarré, 1889. $1. 017.1

— First supplement, 1889-95. 457 p. O. Wilkesbarré, 1895. $1. 017.1

Brooklyn library. Analytical and classed catalogue; authors, titles, and subjects. 1110 p. F. Brooklyn, 1881. $5. 019.1

Useful for its analyticals.

Another good subject catalog is: —

British museum — Library. Subject index of the modern works added to the library, 1880-95; comp. by G. K. Fortescue. 3v. Q. Lond. 1886-97. 019.1

v. 1, 1880-85 (o. p.), scarce; v. 2, 1885-90 (£2); v. 3, 1891-95 (£2), o. p. Arrangement is alphabetical.

Good examples of finding-lists (which are brief catalogs of libraries) are those of the Jersey City public library (alphabetical); Newark public library (classed with author index); Salem public library (classed with author index); Scranton public library (classed with author index); Buffalo public library (classed with author index).

Some library catalogs are excellent special bibliographies. Such are: Catalogue of the Avery architectural library, Columbia university, the Catalogue of the books relating to architecture of the Boston public library, the Catalogue of the Spanish library of the Boston public library, etc.

THE CARD CATALOG

Perhaps it may be worth while to emphasize the importance of using a card catalog. The young student in college or in school should be taught at an early period the general principles of classification and the arrangement and mode of entry adopted in preparing a card catalog for public use. He should understand how to look up a subject by means of the catalog. The freedom of the shelves which is granted in so many libraries does not enable the student to find all the material on a subject. The catalog can aid him by means of its cross-references, double entries, and analytical references. The resources of the library on any subject cannot be thoroughly exhausted until the catalog, as well as the books on the shelves, has been examined.

BULLETINS

The bulletin, usually issued monthly, is the best way a library has to keep its readers informed of additions to its collection, and to supply to them reading-lists and reference lists as well as other interesting matter relating to books and the library. The expense of printing the bulletin has kept many libraries from using it for these purposes. By means of advertisements, however, the expense can be greatly reduced, so that a comparatively large number of libraries now publish bulletins. The bulletin is useful to other libraries, especially if the reference list is one of its features. The Monthly bulletin of the Providence public library was particularly noted for its reference lists so admirably carried out by Mr. W. E. Foster.

Other bulletins are: Bulletin of the Salem public library (monthly), which publishes excellent reading-lists on subjects of general interest; those of the Boston public library, the New York public library, the Carnegie library of Pittsburgh, etc.

LIBRARY PERIODICALS

The two American library periodicals are the Library journal (v. 1, 1876), published monthly, $5 per year, and Public libraries (v. 1, 1896), ten numbers each year, $1 per year. The Library journal is the official organ of the American library association, the full set of volumes since 1876 forming the most valuable source of information relating to libraries. The index volume (v. 1-22) increases its usefulness. Public libraries is devoted especially to the interests of small libraries, and is representative of library interests in the West.

The English journals are: the Library, the Library world, the Library association record, and the Library assistant.

Foreign journals are the Centralblatt für bibliothekswesen in Germany, the Rivista delle biblioteche in Italy.

SUGGESTIVE LIST OF 100 REFERENCE BOOKS

THE selection of the most important reference books for a small library is often difficult to make, depending as it must upon the amount of money available, which often is too limited to buy even the essential works of reference. While the selection depends also upon the character of the library, there are still many books which are necessary to every library. No library, however small and whatever its character, can be complete without a dictionary, an encyclopedia, an atlas, and a biographical dictionary.

To assist in selecting for a small public library, a suggestive list of the first one hundred reference books is offered. It must be remembered, as stated before, that these books can often be bought for less than the published price, at auction or second-hand. Many important works of reference are published by the government and can be obtained free, e. g. the Statistical abstract, Census reports, Review of the world's commerce, etc. The titles are given to a certain extent in the order of usefulness of the books. It is comparatively simple to mention the first ten reference books, but after that the choice becomes more and more difficult, influenced as the librarian must be by the desire to cover as many subjects as possible. The personal estimate of a reference book based upon experience and habit will always influence in its selection. Therefore the following list is not claimed to be the best possible, but it may be helpful to some who find difficulty in selecting reference books. Other lists are mentioned in the list of Books and articles upon reference books at the beginning of this volume.

American reference books have been preferred to foreign in some cases where the foreign books are better, but it is thought that in American libraries an American book is on the whole more useful where only one book on a subject can be bought. In such cases as the gazetteer and the atlas, the information in foreign works is not sufficiently full in American names.

THE index has been made as full as practicable in order that the reference books may be more readily used by persons who have had little experience in looking up information in them. It includes, besides topics referred to in the text, many subjects of general interest to be found in the books of reference mentioned in this manual, such as state seals, state flowers, coats of arms, consuls, election returns, etc.

While it is obviously impossible to make a complete analytical index to the contents of reference books, there are still a number of subjects which it is convenient to locate quickly, and which are difficult to find without a thorough knowledge of these books.
